To Continue Till 1952 Prime Minister Reveals

OTTAWA (CP)—The Prime Minister's office announced today an extension of the term of Viscount Alexander as Governor-General of Canada.

The announcement said the King had approved an extension for an additional year from the spring of 1951.

Viscount Alexander became Governor-General in 1946.

The statement quoted Prime Minister St. Laurent as saying he was sure the people of Canada "generally will share the gratification of his colleagues and himself that Lord and Lady Alexander have found it both pleasing and convenient to agree to this extension of their stay in Canada."

The 59-year-old Governor-General, one of the outstanding military leaders of the Second World War, developed into one of Canada's most popular Viceroy and perhaps the most widely-travelled representative of the King in Canada.

For many months there have been persistent suggestions to the government that his term should be extended. It was understood the Canadian government took the initiative in advising the British government to recommend this step to the King.

CAME HERE IN 1946

Viscount Alexander came here in April, 1946, a few months after triumphs as Supreme Allied Commander in the Mediterranean theatre, an area in which he had thousands of Canadian fighting men under his command.

This helped largely in cementing his associations with the people of the country.

In the 4½ years since his arrival in Canada, the Governor-General has traveled hundreds of thousands of miles and made hundreds of speeches to every kind of gathering. In the first year alone, he was on the road for 83,000 miles and shook hands with 11,000 persons.

Plunging into Canadian life, he has taken up skiing, skating and snowshoeing and continued his other sports such as fishing, tennis and cricket. He has been a familiar figure at hockey and football games.

On occasion, Viscount Alexander has piloted the plane ferrying him from place to place and has taken over the locomotive throttle. He is both a qualified pilot and a locomotive driver, getting his experience at the throttle while running trains when the army was called in during Britain's 1925 general strike.

City Recovers From Battering Of Two Gales

Victoria and the rest of the lower B.C. coast were back on their feet today following the staggering blows of a one-two punch of two gales in rapid succession.

There were a few added jabs during the night, but the weatherman says the battle with the elements is over—for the present at least.

Friday morning's big blow from the southwest had hardly been replaced by a few sunny intervals in calm weather when waters off Victoria started churning again in mid-afternoon.

For nearly two hours a second gale, this time from the southeast, drove stinging rain across the city.

WATERFRONT DISPLAY

Hundreds of cars toured the waterfront. Most spectacular display was at Ross Bay, where long rollers crashed into the seawall and sent salt spray flying over the road.

During the night, unsettled weather persisted, with winds climbing to about 35 miles per hour, then subsiding, then increasing in velocity again. There were intermittent showers.

By 9 today a mere zephyr, by comparison, of eight miles per hour twirled the cups of the anemometer atop the Gonzales Hill observatory.

WEEK-END FORECAST

Forecast for the week-end gave little promise, with clouds and showers today, clouds Sunday with a few sunny intervals. Winds of 25 miles per hour were predicted for later today.

But the gale warning issued by the Dominion weather office at Vancouver has been officially ended.

Scattered damage throughout Victoria was reported during the gales. Power and telephone lines were down at many points, but 95 per cent of this trouble was caused by falling branches and trees.

Britain Admits

'Rights' Leader

LONDON (AP)—Immigration officials permitted the executive secretary of the American Civil Rights Congress, William L. Patterson, to enter Britain today after holding him 20 hours in London airport's detention block.

The negro lawyer, who arrived by air from Paris last night, had been refused entry and was under guard when immigration authorities changed their minds.

Korean-Chinese Forces Blunt Allied Attack

Enemy Makes His Last Strong Stand

SEOUL (CP)—Korean Communists aided by Chinese Reds fought today with renewed fury to stem the Allied advance toward the Manchurian border.

And the Communists lashed out at United Nations mop-up forces far behind the line of advance. A company of U.S. marines was cut to pieces in an ambush near Wonsan.

Nevertheless, a high U.S. Eighth Army source said American, British and Australian troops are expected to reach the Manchurian frontier within a week. They are 45 to 55 miles to the south.

Meanwhile it was disclosed that the Canadian destroyer Sioux has been operating during the last two weeks with the British carrier Theseus in air-support operations in Korean coastal waters.

The Commonwealth 27th Brigade, driving from Kusan on the U.S. 8th Army's 1st Cavalry Division, moved five miles west toward Chongju. Resistance in that area was reported as light.

The first stages of the British advance encountered Reds dug in on both sides of the road, about two miles from Kusan.

A South Korean battalion still was holding its position on the border. It reached the Yalu River in northwest Korea Thursday but later had been reported as withdrawing because its supply lines were cut by the Reds to the south.

WANTS QUICK MOP-UP

The U.S. Eighth Army source said the top military objective is to clear all Korea of Communist resistance. He said there is an important tactical opportunity to sweep to the border in a matter of days and prevent Red Premier Kim Il-sung from reorganizing his remnant forces.

A.P. correspondent Lef Erickson reported that another urgent reason for a quick clean-up of the war—besides saving casualties—is that Gen. Douglas MacArthur "has indicated clearly he wants American troops out of Korea as soon as possible to be ready for any new emergency in Asia."

Meanwhile, a captured Chinese soldier said Friday night that an attack unit of the Chinese Communist army crossed into North Korea 13 days ago with orders to battle the South Korean army.

The prisoner said that before crossing the Yalu River boundary between Manchuria and North Korea his unit commander told him:

"We are going to Korea and must fight against the South Korean army to guard our land and our nation."

Marshall Appeals For 'Realism'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defense Secretary George C. Marshall appealed today to the defense ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty organization to be "realistic in the appreciation of the present critical situation" as they shape the combined force for defense against Communism.

(Canada Defence Minister Brooke Claxton has come out Friday for the appointment of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as Supreme Commander of allied forces in Europe.)

"We must face facts without prejudice," the U.S. defence chief said in an address at the opening of the defence committee session.

He offered some sober words of warning about what can happen if the North Atlantic countries let down in their efforts to build strong defences against Communism.

ONLY STARTED

"We must not sink into complacency or over-confidence, for the struggle may only have begun," he said. And then, at another point in his speech:

"What has been done so far, good as it may be, is far from enough."

The potential collective force of the United Nations was not enough to deter the aggressors in Korea. The actual collective forces of the North Atlantic states might not be enough to deter aggression in our north Atlantic area and definitely was not enough to resist attack without serious and critical initial losses.

Marshall also proposed that the peoples of the pact members be told what each of the countries is giving to the common force. The people "are entitled to a bill of particulars."

Defences At Elbe

MILAN, Italy (AP)—Carlo Sforza, Italian foreign minister, today advocated use of German armed forces to defend Europe at the Elbe instead of the Rhine against any future aggression.

Boyer Declares He Has No Plan To Leave Canada

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Raymond Boyer, wealthy Montreal chemist who once served a penitentiary term for wartime violation of Canada's Official Secrets Act, is here today and says he has no intention of leaving Canada.

Friday night, External Affairs Minister Person said in New York that the R.C.M.P. had lifted Dr. Boyer's passport two days ago "as a result of information which had reached the government and which led them to believe that Dr. Boyer intended to leave the country."

He did not amplify his statement. The question of Dr. Boyer's whereabouts was brought up by Toronto newspaper stories Friday which said he had disappeared and might be heading for Russia. A check with the R.C.M.P. in Montreal indicated Dr. Boyer's passport had been picked up, and a further check with Dr. Boyer's friends indicated he might be vacationing in the Laurentians north of Montreal.

Dr. Boyer Friday night called the R.C.M.P. and announced his presence in Toronto. He also issued a statement to the Toronto Globe and Mail which said:

"I have no intention of leaving the country. I have not applied for any visas. One of the newspapers said I had applied for a visa to Finland. That is definitely not true." Dr. Boyer said he had been visiting friends here and would return to Montreal Monday.

The 43-year-old Boyer said he had obtained a passport last August to visit England.

"That passport has since been impounded by the Secretary of State for External Affairs."

Dr. Boyer's father, Major Guy Boyer, told the Canadian Press his son had talked of a trip to Europe to visit friends and relatives in England and France.

Reached at his farm home at Terrebonne, Que., a few miles north of Montreal, Maj. Boyer said:

"Why, because he wants a holiday trip in Europe, should his passport be lifted?"

Maj. Boyer added: "I expect to see Prime Minister St. Laurent in a few days and will try and straighten out this situation and find out what's what. My son received his passport only a couple of weeks or so ago. I can't understand why it has been taken up. When the R.C.M.P. came here to get the passport they told me there would be no publicity."

"Why can't he be left in

BOYER'S FATHER GULF ISLANDER

Major Guy Boyer, father of Dr. Raymond Boyer, is well known in the Gulf Islands, having lived on North Pender Island for about eight years prior to World War II.

He was admired by the people of North Pender as "a brilliant scholar."

He came to B.C. coast from the east and bought a home on the island, where he lived alone, except for a servant.

Before returning to eastern Canada around the start of the last war, he went to the Cariboo, where he stayed a few months.

HOW GOOD IS YOUR SCHOOL?

Teachers' Salaries Below Test's Level

Only Principals, Vice-Principals
Likely To Reach $4,000 Annually

The Victoria Times today continues its series on "How Good Is Your School?" based on a questionnaire published in Life Magazine on Oct. 26.

By DON INGHAM and DAVE STOCK

How did the schools of Greater Victoria rate in the Times' survey? Based on a system of evaluating their merit devised by the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, N.J., Oak Bay High, Esquimalt High, Central Junior High and Sir James Douglas Elementary Schools fell within the group the test considered "average."

Principals D. H. Hartness of Oak Bay, C. A. Kelly of Esquimalt, A. T. Hunkin of Central and W. H. Wilson of Sir James Douglas answered the questions fairly, and provided free comment and explanation where they thought necessary.

Each of the principals answered in the negative questions which asked was the minimum starting salary for teachers at least $2,700 a year, and did teachers have free periods during the day.

All but the elementary school principal, Mr. Wilson, said it was possible for a classroom teacher to climb to a top salary of $4,000 a year. They suggested, though, only principals and vice-principals would reach this bracket.

Mr. Wilson laughed at the question. His school has grades ranging from kindergarten to Grade 6, and teachers for these lower grades receive lower pay than those in the higher grades. "No, teachers here do not receive $4,000 a year," he answered. "If they did, I would expect everyone would want to be a teacher."

Mr. Hartness of Oak Bay noted 50 per cent of his teaching staff did not have master's degrees, but was quite emphatic when he said the staff was capable and that students were receiving adequate instruction.

"I haven't a master's degree myself," he said, "but I have taught several of the subjects at the university."

Esquimalt High's principal, Mr. Kelly, felt the same way. Observing the questionnaire was based on U.S. standards, he felt teachers at his school were just as well trained as American teachers having M.A.'s.

The Oak Bay High building showed up well in the test, but Mr. Hartness had a comment to make on the question of providing soap in the school washrooms.

GREAT STRIDES FOR TOLERANCE MADE—PREMIER

BELLEVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent today said great progress had been made "to a more tolerant and united Canada."

As an example, as he unveiled a statue of Sir Mackenzie Bowell, prime minister from 1894 to 1896, he noted Sir Henry had been an English-speaking Conservative Protestant and Orangeman. He said he himself was a French-speaking Liberal, a Roman Catholic and a Knight of Columbus.

Tibet Presses India Help To Repulse Reds

NEW DELHI, India (CP)—The Tibetan government has asked India for help to meet the threat from Chinese Communist forces, usually reliable sources said here tonight.

Earlier, government sources in close touch with Tibetan capital had said Chinese Communist troops entered the eastern mountain district of Tibet three days ago.

The strength of the Communist forces and their deployment were unknown, informants added. The Tibetan government, though aware of the invasion, was unable to pinpoint the border crossings, which were reported to have been made in an almost inaccessible mountain vastness of eastern Tibet.

Woman Used As Shield By Vancouver Bandits

VANCOUVER (CP)—Four masked, armed men today held up a downtown branch of the Bank of Montreal here and made a clean getaway with $2,000.

The gunmen seized a woman passerby as they entered the bank and used her as a shield as teller Bruce Auchincloss was ordered to "fork over the dough."

The bandits ordered customers to lie on the floor and one of them held the screaming woman in front of him as they scooped money from deposit wicket. Police said they were investigating a mysterious tip-off from a woman who telephoned them seconds before the bank was held up.

The bank was jammed with customers just before the 11 a.m. Saturday closing hour when three men leaped from a black automobile. The fourth man remained at the wheel. Police immediately started to comb the area around Denman and Barclay Streets, where the bank is situated. Police said the car had been stolen at nearby Maillardville.

Second Story Burglar Gets Rich Haul

The burglar who invaded the home of Harold Husband, 3150 Rutland Drive, Uplands, Friday night stole $200 in cash and $550 in U.S. and Canadian travelers' cheques.

Mr. Husband was entertaining guests in another part of the house when the burglar entered the home by climbing up a drainpipe and going through a second-story window. In addition to the money and cheques, an electric razor, a brooch, and a change purse containing keys were stolen, police said.

The burglar is believed to be the same man who entered another house in the district at about 9.30. The resident spotted the man after he had entered the house. The thief made a hasty retreat out the front door. Nothing was stolen. The husband home robbery took place before 10.

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

NATIONAL ONION WEEK

MY RECENT preoccupation with affairs of an international flavor almost made me overlook a very important "week" in the Canadian calendar. And it wasn't until I heard a reference to it in the CBC news round-up that I realized this was National Onion Week.

Having always prided myself on the close attention I have paid to all the "weeks" on the North American calendar, including Hot Tea Week, Leave-Us-Alone-For-a-Week Week, Breakfast Cereal Week and various other seven-day solicitudes for the general well-being of the public, it would have been unforgivable to miss National Onion Week.

ONTARIO-BORN

ESPECIALLY as this particular week had its genesis in Leamington, Ontario, where the populace evidently concentrates on the growing of the noble bulb. So it is more in the interests of national unity than of the onion itself that I urge Vancouver Islanders in particular and British Columbians in general not to allow this occasion to pass without joining in the Ontario-inspired celebration.

For who would dispute the soundness of that old saw—or whatever you call it—about "Weep and the world weeps with you, laugh, and you laugh alone," or question its aptness as a slogan for the encouragement of Canadians everywhere to observe this pungently perfumed period?

ORATORY AND ONIONS

LEAMINGTON HAS shown us the way by marking every day of the current week by feasts of onions and oratory, economists and chefs—and, perhaps, psychologists—giving their reasons why the onion should be cultivated more than it is in polite society.

And goodness knows it's about time we did something to restore this bucolic bulb to its rightful place in our Canadian way of life. For some years past I have noticed that the onion—whether it be of the green, pickled shallot, Spanish, or just plain onion variety—has been sadly shunned, except in the hot-doggeries and hamburger heavens.

SMELLY STIGMA

TRUE, IT is held in proper respect in the privacy of some homes where it is proudly appears cavorting in cream or gamboiling with the carrots in the casserole. But in most restaurants it has apparently been banned, or, at best, made to feel about as popular as a poor relation. And those who flout such inhibitions are just about as popular.

Which leads me to wonder whether the origination of National Onion Week in Ontario might have been due to the slow descent of the green-onion-eater to the low level of the unfortunate pariahs who are the victims of too close contact with another perfumed product of that province—the skunk. The smelly stigma attaching to both classes is certainly comparable—in the snooty noses of some social snobs.

SHAKESPEARE AND STEVENSON

AN ONION a day may keep other people away—but not if the other people eat onions, too. Psychologists digging down to discover why the onion's prestige has so sadly declined might turn back to Shakespeare and review the damage he did when he made Bottom say:

"And most, dear actors, eat no onions nor garlic. For we are to utter sweet breath."

On the other hand, the bulb must have been "bucked up" when Robert Louis Stevenson gave this advice to gardeners:

"Let first the onion flourish there, Rose among roots, the maiden-fair, Wine scented and poetic soul Of the capacious salad bowl."

OSTRACIZED ONIONS

SO WHY ostracize the poor onion? Let us instead make it feel that it "belongs," as the psychologists say. Let it feel that it is looked upon with affection by those who appreciate its subtle nuances in stews and salads, as well as by those who, rather than let it waste its sweetness on the desert air, consume it "au naturel."

And if that Ontario-inspired National Onion Week does nothing more for national unity than make us all reek together—then I for one will feel that it won't have been wasted.

Further Improvements Being Sought At Ogden Point Docks

The big face-lifting operation completed last spring at Ogden Point has been a boon to users of the C.N.R. dock, but already further improvements are being sought.

Stan Moore, of Moore Whittington Ltd., has sent a letter to the Victoria Chamber of Commerce enlisting their assistance in securing more hard top-surfacing at the dock to facilitate the handling of the ever-growing lumber traffic.

Chamber of Commerce President Fred Hawes said the harbor-master had informed him that the need for more hard topping was urgent. "Needed within a week" was his statement.

The directors of the chamber referred the request to their harbor development group.

Canada's Pro-British Feeling Said Reaction

MANCHESTER (CP)—L. P. Scott, chairman of the Manchester Guardian, says he suspects some of the strong pro-British feeling in Canada is a reaction against the influence of the United States.

"Canadians are anxious not to become economically, a satellite of the United States," said Scott, who visited Canada last summer as a delegate to the seventh Imperial Press Conference.

Awaiting Reactions To New City Lights

Not only vandals have taken pot shots at Victoria's street lighting system over the past few years.

It has been sniped at from many quarters, especially when residents or merchants of some particular area felt they were not getting all the illumination they deserved at night.

Now the ball is thrown back to the public at least in respect of the new Mercury Vapor lights which were installed for one-block test on Yates between Douglas and Blanshard last July.

"They have really proved themselves and we are highly satisfied," said Ken Reid, electrical engineer for the city today.

"With a reduction in power consumption over the old cluster light, we have increased the illumination on the street six times."

No move, however, has yet been made by City Council who authorized the original test, for future installations.

ON PUBLIC DEMAND

"The purpose of the test was to see how the public and merchants would like it, to discover their reactions," Mr. Reid said. "I imagine the only thing that will bring more, is public demand."

The new lights are the latest development in mercury-vapor street lighting units and are designed to use the latest type of horizontal burning mercury-vapor lamp. Mr. Reid said they replaced cluster lights in the test block, he added.

Of interest to taxpayers is the fact that the eight lights installed in the test cost the city $2,700, $900 less than the original estimate of $3,600.

"We had to have 16 cluster light standards and the total cost of standards and installation would range between $4,800 to $5,000," Mr. Reid said.

The cost of the mercury vapor unit is higher than the equivalent incandescent unit, but there is so much more illumination, it cuts down on the number required.

In other parts of the city overhead incandescent lighting units mounted on poles are replacing the old cluster lights. They, too, improve illumination according to Mr. Reid.

"We did several blocks on Fort from Cook to the Dandanelles and there were good reports on them."

Similar incandescent units have now been installed on Government Street from Herald to Hillside, following removal of cluster lights.

"The area on Government does not require the high intensity of lighting provided by the mercury vapor unit but the incandescent units could be converted at any time at not too great expense, should it be desired," Mr. Reid said.

Chinese Army Said Aiding Vietminh

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Pro-Nationalist reports from the Chinese mainland Friday said Communists are sending 30,000 regular troops to aid the Vietminh rebels in Indo-China.

The reports—not confirmed—said the troops are from Red Gen. Liu Po-cheng's army. The troops will move into Indo-China through Langson, the reports said. Langson recently was abandoned by the French.

Ferry Connection To Victoria Urged

Chamber Directors Discuss Service To Gulf Islands

The question whether a Vancouver Island or a mainland port should be the terminal of an improved Gulf Islands service disturbed directors of Victoria Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

The directors learnt that a resolution of islands users had favored the provision of a fast steamship service by the C.P.R. between Vancouver, the Gulf Islands and a port on the Saanich Peninsula.

Members pointed out that such an arrangement would make Vancouver the home port of the service and that trade between the Islands and Victoria would suffer.

Secretary G. I. Warren stated that already such a service existed. The present Gulf Islands service by the C.P.R. was operated out of Vancouver and that the Vancouver-Island link was solely by the Swartz Bay-Fulford ferry.

SUGGEST TENDERS CALLED T. Denny thought that the C.P.R. should not be specified as the providers of the service but that the Federal Government should ask tenders from other operators to supply a fast service of small ships to link Vancouver Island with the Gulf Islands.

Director Austin Curties pointed out that the matter required a lot of study. "It would not be an ordinary ferry. There would be about a dozen ports of call and if Victoria was to be a terminal port, a sturdy ship would be required."

Lions Hear Review Of Work By D.V.A.

A review of the last five years' work of the Department of Veterans' Affairs was given at the regular Lions Club luncheon this week by S. H. Okell, assistant district administrator for the department here.

He pointed out that D.V.A. works closely with National Employment Service toward securing work for veterans on pension, and asked that employers consider disabled and older veterans when hiring help.

The question on the motion of Logan Mayhew was left to a committee for further consideration.

The early Greek physicians believed that it was not possible for a man to enjoy perfect health unless he carefully organized his life to accomplish this single objective. This meant the meticulous ordering of each day. Proper nutrition, exercise, and rest were perfectly balanced. Physical constitution, age and even the seasons of the year were considered . . . For a man of affairs, such a regimen is out of the question. When your work is done, you play and exercise when you can. But this little you can do. See your family physician at least once a year. ### Plenty Of Weather For Weathership

Barometer on weathership St. Catherine's had more than its share of ups and downs during past few days as she battled heavy weather off Oregon and Washington coast, then rode into Esquimalt Friday on crest of howling sou'wester. Look-

SCHOOL SURVEY

"We supply it," he acknowledged, "but I'm hanged if we can keep it."

Esquimalt High School did not show so well on questions about the building facilities. This is one of the schools in the Greater Victoria area which is scheduled to be improved shortly with a major addition. The addition, in fact, will be about twice the size of the present building.

'YES' INSTEAD OF 'NO'

"If we had the addition now," Mr. Kelly observed, "I think I could answer about eight more questions with a yes, instead of a no."

Plans for the addition, he revealed, provide for a combined gym and auditorium, a technical workshop, a home economics room and three extra classrooms. Neither of the high school principals could answer "yes" to a question asking "did at least 60 per cent of the parents belong to a P.T.A. or similar organization?"

Each said also there were now at least two teacher-parent conferences arranged each year for every child, although it was explained several times during the year, parents were given an opportunity to meet the teachers at "open-house" affairs.

RELATIONSHIP GOOD

In summary, the survey showed students at the high schools receiving a fairly well-rounded education from well-qualified but busy teachers. The teacher-student relationship was shown as good.

The two high schools answered differently to the question asking did less than 10 per cent of students in grades 9, 10 or 11 drop out of school last year.

Mr. Hartness answered "yes," while Mr. Kelly replied "no." "We find there is a fairly heavy drop out in grade 9 and 10, particularly 9. Those that stay for 10, usually stay until they graduate," Mr. Kelly explained.

NOT FIRE-RESISTANT

On the junior high school level, Mr. Hunkin pointed out his 75-year-old institution did not have hot water in washrooms, and was not fire-resistant.

He said, however, that the staff paid close attention to educational trends, assisted in organizing student activities and promoted regular teacher-parent conferences.

While the school has no P.T.A., Mr. Hunkin said an attempt would be made this year to organize one.

He said the main factor against it was that the children of the school came from such a large area, there was not the "neighborhood atmosphere" to attract parent interest.

A quick glance over the Central Junior High questionnaire revealed also: The school has a remedial reading specialist; many new courses added in the last five years; students participating in observing local governments in action; a cafeteria to provide hot lunches and organized athletic and hobby programs.

At Sir James Douglas elementary school, many of the questions asked in the survey did not apply.

ONLY TO GRADE 6

Until last year, this school went to grade 8. This year, however, classes go only to grade 6. Students who would have been attending seven and eight at Sir James Douglas are now going to Central Junior High. Space there was provided when the new S. J. Willis Junior High School was opened.

The school was shown to use extensive audio-visual material, that is, motion pictures. "We find it an excellent way of teaching," Mr. Wilson commented. "It is useful for instructing children in all grades. The difficulty is getting the films."

All four principals answered "no" to the question asking were they free from teaching duties themselves. The test thought this an advantage but some of the principals thought not.

Mr. Kelly summed up the case: "I teach on and one-half periods a day. That isn't enough to interfere with my office work yet it allows me to keep a hand in the business. Also, it provides a means for me to get to know the students better."

Mr. St. Laurent told his audience the "enslavement of the minds of human beings is not an incidental feature of totalitarianism, whether it takes the form of Fascism or Nazism or Communism."

During the ceremonies, Mr. St. Laurent, president of Stanford (Calif.) University, received honorary degrees of Doctors of Laws.

ASK CLUB FOR AGED PEOPLE

A clubroom or centre in certain sections of the city for isolated lonely aged persons on small incomes is recommended in a report on needs of local aged citizens released today.

"They could find some social life combined with warmth and could be encouraged to develop some craft work or interest," a special committee of the Community Welfare Council reported.

This help, it was felt, would delay the need for admission to a more expensive type of care.

Ladysmith Looking For New Territory

By DON INGHAM
Times Island Editor

LADYSMITH—After 50 years of existence, which included several years when it was almost a ghost town, Ladysmith has practically filled its limits and is looking for new territory.

Chamber of Commerce, headed by Harvey F. Wallace, president, has taken the lead in a plan to amalgamate well-populated areas immediately to the north and south of the city. Rocky Creek forms a natural boundary on the north, while to the south Holland Creek has been chosen as the boundary.

There is no frantic haste towards amalgamation. Most of the residents feel that it will come eventually, in that economic, social and even topographical influences make the city, as proposed, a complete unit.

NATURAL COURSE

Meanwhile, it is being considered from all angles, and is expected to come about as a natural course of events.

With its 220 acres perched on the side of a hill, Ladysmith had a prosperous few years of life until the coal mines at South Wellington gave out. Of the 600 miners who used to live here, only 20 residents now work in the mines.

Now the city claims almost 700 employees of Comox Logging and Railway Co. Ltd. and about 150 with H. R. MacMillan Export Co., Chemainus Division, who have more than filled the place vacated by the miners.

According to R. S. Wood, city clerk, the recent falling off of building figures is not an indication of stagnation, but of almost complete saturation as prosperity followed in the wake of the extensive logging activity.

As a result much new building has taken place outside the city. Proposed new boundaries will give an area of one square mile within the city limits.

City Recovers From Blows Of 2 Gales

Overnight Winds Strike Again, Adding To Area's Damage Toll

Victoria and the rest of the lower B.C. coast were back on their feet today following the staggering blows of a one-two punch of two gales in rapid succession.

There were a few added jabs during the night, but the weatherman says the battle with the elements is over—for the present at least.

Friday morning's big blow from the southwest had hardly been replaced by a few sunny intervals in calm weather when waters off Victoria started churning again in mid-afternoon. For nearly two hours a second gale, this time from the south-east, drove stinging rain across the city.

WATERFRONT DISPLAY

Hundreds of cars toured the waterfront. Most spectacular display was at Ross Bay, where long rollers crashed into the seawall and sent salt spray flying over the road.

During the night, unsettled weather persisted, with winds climbing to about 35 miles per hour, then subsiding, then increasing in velocity again. There were intermittent showers.

By 9 today a mere zephyr, by comparison, of eight miles per hour twirled the cups of the anemometer atop the Gonzales Hill observatory.

WEEK-END FORECAST

Forecast for the week-end gave little promise, with clouds and showers today, clouds Sunday with a few sunny intervals. Winds of 25 miles per hour were predicted for later today.

But the gale warning issued by the Dominion weather office at Vancouver has been officially ended.

Scattered damage throughout Victoria was reported during the gales. Power and telephone lines were down at many points, but 95 per cent of this trouble was caused by falling branches and trees.

The high winds started several chimney fires. Police were called out to guard fallen power lines, and a tree at Princess and Blanshard was set ablaze.

A primary power line near Moss and May Streets went out around 4 Friday afternoon, leaving the south Fairfield area without lights for about an hour and a half.

WITHOUT POWER

Otter Point, Mill Bay and Shawigan, like many parts of the city, were without power at times, and part of the Shawigan area was reported still blacked out this morning following damage by a falling tree, around midnight.

Parts of the Keating district were in the same situation today as B.C. Electric crews hastened to repair lines.

Crews were out all day Friday and most of the night. "Radio equipment in the trucks more than paid its way Friday—the crews were able to go from point to point without delay," a B.C. Electric spokesman said.

From 4:30, Friday morning till 4:30 this morning, a total of 47 inches of rain fell on the city.

Small boats at several places along the waterfront were smashed by huge waves.

A 15-foot cabin cruiser owned by Roy Cain, 111 Niagara Street, broke loose from its mooring at the outer wharf, but was saved from damage when the owner and a friend held it off the rocks with boards.

VANCOUVER (BUP)—The Civic Reform Association will run at least six candidates in the forthcoming Vancouver municipal election Dec. 13.

Credit Curbs Expected Soon

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal restrictions on consumer credit, designed as an anti-inflation weapon, are expected to be announced shortly, possibly during the week-end.

The new regulations, approved by the cabinet last week, probably will mean the end of present-day easy-payment systems—the $1-down-$1-a-week type of thing. It may also mean new curbs on charge accounts and some forms of personal loans.

Canadians probably will find minimum down payments on credit buying boosted to at least a third of the total price, a cut-down in the length of time credit may be extended and a tightening up on the amount of money that may be obtained from a personal loan corporation.

Ex-Mayor, Alderman, In Port Alberni By-Election

PORT ALBERNI (CP)—Ald. William Johnston surprised a special City Council session here Friday night by resigning "to clear my skirts and run for mayor."

He and Mayor L. K. Jordan will contest a special by-election Nov. 15 caused by Mr. Jordan's resignation following a public inquiry into civic administration. The inquiry adjourned Wednesday.

Council decided to relieve Frank L. Kito of his duties as city treasurer and collector. He retains the post of city clerk. Council also named Ald.

George Folkard as acting mayor. Mr. Johnston told reporters he resigned because it had been brought to his attention that he was disqualified because of business dealings with the city.

"Through my insurance agency I have had indirect business connections with the municipality," he said. "These were thrown up in my face and I felt I had to resign." His term as alderman—his first—would have expired in December.

'Fattest Insurance Policy'

ONE CORRESPONDENT IN THE United States capital let himself go yesterday with the suggestion that Minister of Trade and Commerce C. D. Howe had returned to Ottawa from Washington with probably the "fattest insurance policy Canada has ever seen." This is the 1950 bigger-and-better version of the famous Hyde Park Agreement into which Prime Minister Mackenzie King and President Roosevelt entered in April, 1941, two months before Germany invaded Russia and eight months before Pearl Harbor.

This was the pact, first of all, to facilitate economic and other forms of co-operation calculated to insure greater and quicker aid to Great Britain and, secondly, to establish a general plan for the mobilization of the main resources of this continent, each providing the other with the defence article which it was best able to produce and produce quickly. How effectively this practical arrangement worked needs no elaboration here.

The new agreement is much wider in scope as it directly affects the rearmament programs of both countries and considerably broader in its long-range economic and political implications. It represents a bold stroke at the majority of the artificial barriers which hamper the normal exchange of goods between the two nations—apart altogether from the realism now imperative to apply to the complementary production of essential war materials.

It may be too risky to predict permanence for an almost free flow of trade across the 49th parallel, since even in the present obvious emergency the line of demarcation between two schools of economic thought in the United States is clearly discernible. But its general terms as a workable co-operative instrument—especially as they concern stockpiling potential—are much more elastic than those of the Hyde Park Agreement, and the likelihood of prompt and mutual application will influence the economy of both countries very considerably.

Scarce material, normally entering into the production of some durable goods and non-essential structural projects, for example, will now come within allocation control. But all these points will be clarified when the full details of the "insurance policy" are published. In the meantime, however, Mr. Howe is apparently well pleased.

Film Board Takes Honors

THERE IS ENCOURAGING NEWS IN the report from Salerno, Italy, that three products of Canada's National Film Board have this week been awarded prizes at the fifth International Film Festival. Norman McLaren, a brilliant young Scots-born animator now connected with the Film Board, is credited with production of all three films thus honored.

The Film Board is currently undergoing a transition. Some months ago Mr. W. Arthur Irwin, the distinguished Toronto editor, was brought in as Film Commissioner with orders, apparently, to give N.F.B. a thorough overhaul and clear it of its taint of left-wing activity. After careful screening, five members of a staff of 575 were "separated" without any of the hoopla of the U.S. Un-American Activities Committee—and advised that they could no longer be employed. As a result of this investigation, the Film Board now enjoys the confidence of defence officials and even of the provinces of Quebec, which arbitrarily banned its product for some months.

Mr. Irwin has trimmed staff, tightened up administrative and financial operations. Government members have stepped out and given Mr. Irwin authority to run his show as a business, rather than as a wing of the civil service, although he still reports to the responsible cabinet minister, Hon. Robert H. Winters. In the re-constitution of the Board, five Canadians from private life, each representing a distinct geographical area, sit down at meetings with three top-ranking civil servants to decide N.F.B. policy; the Pacific Coast delegate is the publisher of the Victoria Daily Times.

The National Film Board has proved that it can make pictures which compare favorably with the best product of other countries. Its aim is not only to "interpret Canada to Canadians," but to tell the Canadian story abroad. Given a decent measure of freedom, and the support of an active and interested board, there is every reason to believe that Mr. Irwin will make the N.F.B. a great force for good in this country.

'A Sign Of Our Faith...'

THE REOPENING OF THE HOUSE of Commons chamber in London will indeed have been viewed by all who have more than a casual interest in current events as "a sign to the world of our faith in freedom." The words of the King in describing the meeting place that has been rebuilt since the bombing of the Houses of Parliament by the Luftwaffe show that that faith has not been allowed to lapse.

Within a stone's throw of the present chamber is the site of the first of those councils that grew into the democratic form of government which Britain and Canada know today. That form has weathered the storms of hundreds of years; it has existed side by side with totalitarian regimes of other lands; it has seen such regimes explode in public fury or wither and die of abuse. But it has assumed ever greater prominence and acclaim, bulwarked by observance of the fundamental freedoms of speech, of congregation and of thought that lie at the basis of democracy.

Only one man in Britain is forbidden to enter that place of government—the King himself. Although the danger of royal interference that led to such a tradition has long since ended, the significance of the observance lives on today. It means that no tyrant shall cross that threshold, and although the threat of danger has passed from royalty to anti-royal elements, the determination remains as strong as ever. As the inheritors of that legacy, we should be equally alive to the need for its preservation.

President Syngman Rhee's Move Not In Best Interest Of Korea

By BRUCE BLOSSAT from New York

A SITUATION is developing in North Korea that demands a speedy solution by the United Nations. Syngman Rhee, South Korean president, has begun appointing local administrators in captured North Korean communities. This is, of course, in flat defiance of United Nations edicts, which gave to General MacArthur the job of civil administration in conquered territory. Rhee has even gone so far as to declare that the U.N. is "sabotaging" Korean interests by its proposals. This sounds a little forgetful.

Blossat

Where would Mr. Rhee have been by now without the gallant aid of U.N. military forces in saving South Korea?

The U.N. plan for the government of North Korea seems to be perfectly in order. It is usually the custom to entrust to the military the job of civil administration in conquered lands in the unsettled period directly following combat. Then, when order has been thoroughly restored and life is functioning on a nearly normal peacetime basis, the people are given an opportunity to vote for their own governing representatives, from the local level on up.

If the U.N. plan can be carried out, fair elections undoubtedly will be held in North Korea at the earliest possible moment. There seems no need for new elections in South Korea, since satisfactory balloting was conducted there not too long ago.

This arrangement ought to be eminently suitable to Rhee. His insistence on going ahead on his own at this time is an arbitrary and arrogant action wholly out of keeping with the U.N. spirit in which the Republic of Korea was nurtured.

To be sure, the U.N. does recognize the South Korean government as the authority for all of Korea—and has ever since the first elections were held. But that government was virtually a creature of the U.N., and so now is the part of Korea being liberated from the Communists by U.N. forces.

Rhee's haste to establish his own representatives in North Korean towns and cities is unseemly and cannot help but cast doubt on the essential honesty of his motives.

Korea was a milestone in one sense because our action in speeding to its military defence showed a boldness and courage the world had been crying for. It can be a milestone in still another way if we now proceed to demonstrate that we no longer intend to succumb to the political bewilderment which so often marks the aftermath of war.

Chips Off The Old Brock

By DAVID BROCK

THE B.C. Court of Appeal recently upheld a judgment which ruled that it is libellous to bring up a man's past criminal record, to the prejudice of his present employment, unless he does something to justify such reference. This will probably come as a shock to those who imagine truth is a complete defence to a libel action, but there seems to be justice in it for all that. People with criminal records have a tough time, and are often driven back into crime by gossip and persecution which close all employment to them. Ask the John Howard Society about this!

Brock

But in one kind of case the courts themselves do some curious dragging up of a man's past record. Under the amended Criminal Code, a man can be detained indefinitely (with his case reviewed every three years by the Minister of Justice) if he appears to be a habitual criminal.

A HABITUAL criminal is one who is persistently leading a criminal life and who has at least three times before his present conviction been convicted of an indictable offence for which he was liable to five years' imprisonment. Fortunately, perhaps, a charge of being a habitual criminal cannot be laid frivolously by the local police but must have the consent of the attorney-general.

You'd be astonished how many crimes render you liable to five years. Just for fun, I once went through the Criminal Code to see what naughty pranks I had played in early youth, especially on Halloween's, and I found that my innocent games had rendered me liable to a total of (I think) 682 years in prison, plus six life sentences, plus an indefinite sentence as a habitual criminal. Yet I am not really a habitual criminal, and never was. Indeed, I was regarded in some quarters as a bit of a sissy.

INCIDENTALLY, talking of length of sentence, why can you go to prison for seven years for stealing a letter but only five years for stealing a postcard? I can quite see how reading a letter is different from reading a postcard (though I knew a man who once received a postcard marked "private and confidential"). But stealing is another matter. Perhaps the Criminal Code wishes to encourage postcard collecting, persuaded by the Department of Health that hobbies are good for us.

BUT let us revert to habitual criminals and get away from habitual postcard collectors. You will note that any three big offences (plus his present one) will do to send the man over the top, so to speak. They don't have to be the same kind of knavery... at least, not according to the way the law reads.

One can understand how a man who commits four burglaries can easily be mistaken for a full-time burglar, or how a man convicted four times of forgery can not too libellously be called a regular forger. But if a man has occasion to defraud his creditors one time, and run over an old lady another time, and commit bigamy another time, and throw a stink bomb for his final and fourth offence, I do not see how you can strictly describe him as a habitual fraud-man-slaughterer-bigamy-stink bomb-ist. On the whole, I think it a very wise precaution to give the attorney-general some discretion in these things.

FOOTNOTE to the above: When I gave the throwing of stink bombs as an example just now, it was only a rough example. I am well aware that you can't get more than five years for it. You can get only five years, not more. I am also aware that there is a minimum of two years for this ghastly crime, though I certainly wasn't aware of that on many a Halloween. If you throw the stink bomb anywhere that is not "a place of usual resort," the charge won't lie. But what's the point of throwing it where people aren't?

My mention of bigamy brings up a curious point. You can get seven years for your first offence, and 14 years for your second. But for polygamy (Sec. 310), you can get only five years plus a fine. Safety in numbers? In union there is strength? Many hands make light sentence?

EXPENDED

THE other day I had to help drive eight small children to and from a birthday frolic. On the way there, they seemed to be suffering from various violent types of insanity. They were eight maniacs. On the way home I naturally thought they would be much worse, after being subjected to mass hysteria on a bigger scale. But it must have been a good party as far as food and exercise went, for I had nothing but eight little faintly groaning corpses to truck home. Apart from an occasional whimper or a slight nervous tic, you would have pronounced life extinct. I delivered a couple of these unwieldy parcels to their father, who took one look and said "Burnt-out veterans?"

MAKE YOUR OWN AT HOME

I HAVE before me an advertisement telling me to send 10 cents at once for a pamphlet which will show me how to write a book in six days. That sounds mighty easy. I must try it. Six days per book will give me 60 books a year, with 61 in leap years. Five books bath November, April, June and September. Why not write your own library at home in your spare time? In ten years you'd have 608 books, each carefully adjusted to your own taste. Call that nothing? And you'd be the only person who could read them, too.

As Our Readers See It

WANTS CONTROLS

Many people are opposed to controls of prices and wages, but in times of such menacing inflation as we are living in, controls would seem to be essential and likely of necessity to come sooner or later. Why not sooner than later—before the spiral gets out of control?

The only political party asking for such action is the C.C.F. The Liberal and Conservative parties will doubtless lose many supporters if something is not done at once, and the price rise continues.

According to the Financial Post, October 14, the Gallup Poll finds that 75 per cent of the people want a restoration of price controls. The Financial Post gives the cost of living index on September 1 as 169.8—a new high—and estimates it may rise to 175 by February. The time for action seems overdue.

'SPEARING FISH'

I cannot refrain from offering comment on a recent letter which appeared in your paper under the heading "Spear-fishing" and signed by Mr. J. H. Gray.

His reference to "these harmless, innocent and helpless creatures" is pathetic. I would like to suggest to Mr. Gray that, in this instance, the caption of "Victims of Creed," or "Creed" is entirely improper and—to use his own expression—altogether non-humorous.

I have known Mr. Creed for a long time and can state, without fear of contradiction, that there is not a better sportsman in the Province of British Columbia; I can only suggest, therefore, that the newspaper account that has caused Mr. Gray to hold forth to such fanatical extent must surely have been "misquoted."

I would also like to enlighten Mr. Gray as to another part of his letter in which he refers to the "shoe being on the other foot." Mr. Creed, unfortunately, has only one foot, he having lost a leg in an effort to defend a country of which Mr. Gray is lucky enough to be an inhabitant, during which process, I am quite content to believe, he did other things besides "spear-fishing," a fact by which, Mr. Gray, you have, of course, ultimately benefited.

GEORGE HARRISON.

ANOTHER SUPPORTER

I have not had the honor of meeting Nancy Hodges in person, but I have had the pleasure of reading many of her articles, as they appeared periodically in your paper.

I am writing this only out of a sense of fairness, although I am quite convinced that this very gifted lady does not require anyone to take up the cudgels on her behalf, being quite capable of doing so herself. In fact I know of no one more qualified to do so.

A letter appearing in your paper of the 24th inst., written by a lady who prefers to remain "incog," is not justifiable, to my way of thinking. It savours too much of a personal and petty spite.

I, too, am one of that "Happy Breed" and feel proud to think that Nancy Hodges, an exceedingly brilliant woman, is also a member of that most favored race.

Personally, I have never found anything in Nancy Hodges' columns that anyone could take exception to, and I speak from long experience. I have always found her articles most entertaining, and of an instructive and humorous nature. She, undoubtedly, is a great lover of Nature and it is a pity that some of her studies, relating to the wild life in her garden and elsewhere, cannot be put up in book form and placed on the school curriculum. It might help to avert the minds of youth from those gangster and mystery stories, which are poisoning the minds of the children of our times.

J. H. GRAY.

ENGLISH VIEW

I have noticed various letters in your paper about Englishmen, Canadians, Canadian plays, etc., and got a kick out of 'em. One letter, I believe, written by some person who signed himself or herself, "Fair Play," was a bit thick, about Nancy Hodges and evidently was written by someone who lacked breeding. I compliment you, Mr. Editor, on being broad minded enough to publish it; personally I would have put it in the wastepaper basket.

I often enjoy reading Nancy Hodges' little skits, some are distinctly clever, but might mention, without offending the good lady, I think sometimes she is inclined to be just a wee bit pedantic. Well, public people are always subject to criticism I suppose.

I happen to be an Englishwoman and know my countrymen. I consider that there is no one more absolutely bigoted than your lower middle class English person who has never left England except to settle down in the colonies or Canada; a person who has probably had a secondary education, council school, I believe they call them.

Well, I suppose it takes all kinds to make a world.

By the way, since I am writing and if you don't scrap this letter, I would like to mention one thing, re radios. Advertising over the radio, I think, is getting positively chronic. 75% of nearly all the programs consists of advertisements and some of 'em are actually sung; if you can call it singing and we have to pay a tax on them. At all events if they must have ads, could it not be modified? One thing I have against North America, they over-do things—absolutely unnecessary, to my mind. A good article doesn't need advertising, it advertises itself.

OBSERVER.

LAST WORD

Winnipeg Free Press

The simplest of all economic facts—that the nation can consume only what it produces—is the hardest fact of all to make understood. Events in North America, all the elements which combine in inflation, attempt to deny this fact but, stubborn like all facts, it will have the last word.

Ups And Downs

By BRIAN A. TOBIN

"EVERYBODY," said the Elevator Man, "is afraid of something. The war hero, who stormed a machine gun nest or knocked out a tank single-handed, may be scared of children or girls, or of the public notice his bravery creates. The deepest diver may be afraid of snakes; the snake charmer afraid of drowning. One man's meat is another man's poison in this field as in many others. That probably explains what happened in Croydon, England, the other night. A vaudeville act had a fella throwing knives and axes at a girl who stood against a wall. Halfway through the act the girl fainted and slumped to the floor. Stabbed by a knife? Tortured nerves snapped? Nope. It was just that she felt something tickling her leg and thought she saw a spider on it. Reassured, she stood up and the knives and axes started whistling by again. Mind your step!"

"It scares you," said the Elevator Man, "to think of some of the things people are scared of. I see some comment the other day about the B.C. Electric not having any No. 13 bus because people don't like the number. You begin to think that the human beings who crouch in buses aren't far removed from the hairy ancestors who crouched in caves. A lot of people who call themselves Christians still mix a little voodoo in with their beliefs. They won't walk under ladders, even on the way to church. That's pretty hard to understand. But you'd think that anyone dumb enough to be afraid of No. 13 would be dumb enough to believe in rabbit's feet or horseshoes, and so be able to carry some protection with them. Going down!"

"Some of our fears," said the Elevator Man, "are instinctive—fear of falling, fear of a sudden noise, and so on. But the funny thing is that most ordinary fears really have no basis. We're afraid of what might happen, but half the time it never does. We're afraid the car might turn over, the house might burn down, we might catch cold, we might lose our job, we might... there's no end to them. And most of them quite unreasonable. 'We have nothing to fear but fear,' said Roosevelt. I'm afraid he was right."

Both Old, New Testaments Lay Stress On Inner Life

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

The Bible, both in the Old Testament and the New, lays great stress upon the inner life. Old Testament writers, whose words of devotion and wisdom were the heritage of New Testament writers, were constantly insistent upon the fact that the true life did not consist in outward appearance, nor even in a display of good works.

"As a man thinketh in his heart so is he," "Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life" (Proverbs 4:23). Not only were such thoughts constantly expressed in various ways, but a repeated and most distinctive prayer of these Old Testament saints was that God would search their hearts. "Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me and know my thoughts" (Psalm 139: 23).

CANNOT HIDE

It is a solemn thought, that whatever we may appear to others, or even to ourselves (Paul admonished early Christians not to think of themselves more highly than they ought to think), we cannot hide from God. But it requires courage, as well as faith, to face that fact, and pray in sincerity that our hearts and lives may be open to that searching, but loving, all-seeing eye of God.

The late Dr. James Stalker, eminent Scottish minister, once published a sermon under the title, "The Four Men." The four, as he identified them, may be found in II Corinthians 4:3-4. They are: 1—The man his friends see, "that I should be judged of you." 2—The man the world sees, "or of man's judgment." 3—The man as he sees himself, "yea, I judge not mine own self." 4—The man God sees, "He that judgeth me is the Lord."

It is to know and be that last man, the man God knows, that is the true end and purpose of all a Christian's thought, prayer, and meditation. In achieving that, there are many aids to thought and devotion. The late George Matheson, the famous blind preacher of Scotland, and author of the hymn, "O love that will not let me go," published a series of what he called "devotional meditations," some under the title of "Moments on the Mount."

STANDARD AIDS

There are standard devotional aids, both in Roman Catholic and Protestant literature, and there are current booklets from which many derive help. I edited for several years the little manual, "Daily Devotions" for the Congregational Christian churches, and one of the best known, and widely used among those of all denominations, is the Methodist booklet, "The Upper Room."

I do not disparage these, but it is my conviction that the best aid to Christian thought and devotion is the New Testament itself, and all other aids are of value only as they help to bring light and understanding to what is there. It is my belief, also, that much reading and meditation upon the Scriptures, even without any other aid, brings its own reward.

John Robinson, pastor of the pilgrims in Holland, before they came to Plymouth, warned them that there was more light to break from God's word; and there is even more such light to break for those who seek it.

Collaborator Makes Her Bow To Readers

By JACK AND HILDA BEASTALL

Greetings, Home Gardeners. Since my name now appears in the by-line of this column I shall have to justify its addition. While I've been enjoying collaborating on past articles, from now on they say I'm on my own, doing some writing for the womenfolk who enjoy working with plants as much as I do.

Jack and I work together on most of the jobs, but we don't always agree on which is the right procedure to follow. At such times we each do part of our own way and compare results. Usually, they're about equal—proving something—maybe the plants didn't need our help at all. So, if we don't always agree, you'll know both methods have been tried and proved satisfactory.

Prelate Disappears

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Vatican radio, quoting Czechoslovak refugees, said today that Archbishop Joseph Beran of Prague has disappeared from the Episcopal building and is believed to be in Prague's Pankrac Prison.

Silk Oats, Norfolk Island Pines, some of the coolhouse orchids, palms, a half dozen varieties of begonias, cacti (one of the spines is in my finger right now), succulents, down to the ordinary trailing ivy. And somewhere in the list should have been pots of special bulbs which I am trying out for house plants. Some ferns, and a case full of cuttings over a soil heating cable.

I hope to tell about a lot of these, especially the more uncommon ones, together with their likes and dislikes as gathered from my experiences with them. Then, too, there are the outside plants, some of them kept especially for making indoor flower arrangements, and my spare time hobby, as Jack calls it—keeping house, and "cooking with herbs."

Hope you are going to enjoy some of this as much as I do—Hilda.

Protestants Ask Pope To Prove By Bible Mary Assumption Dogma

By JOHN RODERICK

LONDON (AP)—The Protestant Alliance made an offer to Pope Pius XII Friday to embrace the Roman Catholic faith if he could prove by the Bible the bodily assumption of the Virgin Mary, as well as "the other errors of your church."

The Pope Nov. 1 will proclaim the new dogma that the Mother of Christ ascended physically as well as spiritually to Heaven.

The proposed new dogma has drawn sharply-edged criticism from leading churchmen of the Church of England in Britain. The Archbishop of Canterbury, Most Rev. Geoffrey Fisher, and leading Protestant ecclesiastics have asserted, as the Protestant Alliance does, that the dogma will widen the breach between Rome and Canterbury.

The alliance, one of the oldest Protestant church societies in Britain, in a letter to the Pope said:

"If you will show us the Scripture for the bodily assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary and the other errors of your church we will embrace your church."

The letter was signed by R. Moffat Gillon of the Scottish Reformation Society; T. R. Horan of the Irish Church Missions, J. A. Kenist of the Protestant Youth Society, Norman Porter of the National Union of Protestants of Ireland, and O. T. Taylor, secretary of the alliance.

The alliance, founded in 1845 by the great English reformer

Earl Shaftsbury, claims a membership of between 20,000 and 30,000. Its influence in church affairs, despite its size, is considerable.

It said there was no proof of the new doctrine in the Bible, that there is no trace of it in the history of the Christian church for the first six centuries and that it is not mentioned in the three early creeds of the Catholic Church.

The alliance has called for a day of prayer Oct. 30 and has summoned a public meeting to discuss the new doctrine.

Taylor described the dogma as "driving a wedge between any hopes of union" within Christianity.

Service Book For Armed Forces

A new 200-page book for use at divine services in the armed forces is being printed and will be used by Canada's special force soldiers—Lt. Col. C. F. G. Stone, M.B.E., Director of Army Chaplain Services (Protestant), said today.

A far cry from the prayer book and hymnal used during the Second World War, the new edition contains the order of service for church and drum-head services, order of service for military funerals, some 250 hymns of the type popular with soldiers and 50 song selections for use in worship.

Issued under the auspices of the Canadian Council of Churches, 25,000 copies have been ordered—10,000 for the special force.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Esquimalt Juniors Learn To Dance; Teachers And Parents To Meet

Senior students at Esquimalt High are conducting dancing lessons for juniors who have not yet learned. Esquimalt is no doubt, like other Victoria high schools, hoping that in the future junior students will be more active at school dances.

Esquimalt's boys' rep basketball team is hoping for a return game with the Normal School in the near future. Monday, Normal School came out on top when the teams met for the first time this season.

Boys' and girls' Hi-Y clubs at Esquimalt are increasing their financial coffers by the sale of chocolate milk and candy during the noon hour. Mount View girls' Hi-Y club plans to follow suit.

Annual Mount View award-giving ceremonies were held at the school Friday. Joan Fisher won the senior girls' sport cup, Shirley Coles the junior girls' cup, George Willmot the senior boys' cup and Sterling Knudsen the junior boys' cup.

WIN LETTERS

Block letters were presented to grade 12 students who have devoted considerable time and effort for the betterment of the school. Jean and Jocelyn Provan, Marlene Whiteley and Trygve Carlsen were recipients of large letters, while Bagh Singh, Warren Cunningham, Lorraine Young, Verna Asprey and Galle Gilmour received small letters. Congratulations are due to all winners for jobs well done.

About 20 members of Mount View's drama club have been chosen for the cast of Dickens' "Christmas Carol" to be presented at the school shortly before Christmas. The play will be directed by G. Thompson and Miss E. Piggott.

DANCE AT OAK BAY

Oak Bay High is preparing for their first dance of the year, to be held Tuesday, Ann Maclean, Dick Hales and Dick Macintosh are in charge of decorations that will be based on the Halloween theme. Girls will be decked out in circle skirts and peasant blouses while boys will be in jeans and plaid shirts.

Under the supervision of Miss Francis, Mount Douglas High has organized its first glee club. The club, whose president is Lorraine Walker, hopes to prepare an operetta for presentation next spring.

MOUNT DOUGLAS INITIATION

Girls' Hi-Y initiations at Mount Douglas held during the day last Wednesday were climaxed with a party in the school's auditorium the same evening. After being blindfolded, new members were led barefooted across spaghetti, to name but one of the obstacles, then with hands behind their

Conciliator For Breweries Dispute

Four B.C. breweries have been unable to come to satisfactory terms with their 500 employees concerning a new work contract so the B.C. Labor Relations Board has appointed a conciliation officer to intervene in the matter.

The board has picked F. Forgie of Vancouver to undertake the job of bringing the two parties together on a compromise basis.

Want No Nazis Here

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian Jewish Congress Friday urged "the utmost care" in admission of German immigrants to ensure that no Nazi gets into Canada.

P.C.'s Of Manitoba Quit Coalition

Convention Votes 215 To 17 To End Arrangement With Liberal Party

BRANDON, Man. (CP)—Speculation centred today on the future of two Progressive Conservative cabinet ministers remaining in the Manitoba coalition government following the party's decision to break up its 10-year partnership with the Liberals.

Quick Action Brings Thief Before Court

Edward A. L. Dawe, Prince Rupert, acted quickly on the evening of Oct. 25 to capture the thief who robbed him.

Sequel to that scene took place in city police court today when George Syme, no fixed address, was found guilty of stealing $120 from Dawe, a guest at the Dominion Hotel. He was remanded to Oct. 30 for sentence.

Dawe told of being visited in his Dominion Hotel room by Syme who identified himself as a Korean veteran.

When Syme left Dawe found his wallet missing. The robbed man made a speedy trip down the stairs and nabbed accused at the hotel entrance. Syme was arrested by Detective Alex Briggs.

Syme said he had no knowledge of the whole episode. He said he had been drinking for weeks. He said as a result of ill-health caused by overseas service he had to drink to get relief.

I'm not responsible for my actions because when I drink I don't know what I am doing," Magistrate Hall did not believe Syme's story.

St. Andrew's Choir Presents Cantata

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church choir will present "Song of Thanksgiving" by J. H. Maunders, on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 5, at 3 in the church auditorium. A collection will be taken in aid of the organ fund. The soloists will be: Sopranos, Miss K. Paulin, Miss Rosa Cooper, Miss Fay Robinson and Mrs. F. Wilmshurst; contralto, Mrs. J. H. Ratcliffe; tenors, Stan Honeychurch and J. W. Bell; bass, A. W. Trevett.

$4,000 Violin Stolen

WINNIPEG (CP)—A $4,000 violin, made in 1670, was stolen Thursday night from a parked automobile, police here reported. Richard Seabor, prominent Winnipeg musician, described his missing violin as a Gabrielli, dirty-yellow in color, with repair work on the headpiece and scroll.

NO BARRELS FOR NIAGARA

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Canada's steel shortage is putting a crimp in barrel trips over Niagara Falls.

Jiggs Rufrano of the Cataract Metal Works, who has a barrel on order for Leslie Sander, industrial designer of New York, says he is having trouble getting steel.

Sander announced some time ago that he planned to go over the Horseshoe Falls in a barrel early next month.

Must Register To Get Vote

Just paying your road and poll tax does not automatically put you on the municipal voters' list.

There must be one initial registration for householders and licensees, Frank Hunter, city clerk, said today in advising of the closure of the 1950 Voters' list Tuesday night at 5.

Registrations which have been accepted throughout September and October totalled 466 up to Thursday and officials expect the total list to be greater than last year's 18,290.

Mr. Hunter said a number of property owners go on the new list automatically.

"All other licensees and householders desiring to have their names on the list must register at the city clerk's office at City Hall by 5 Tuesday evening," said Mr. Hunter.

Hospital Scheme Restriction Stays

The provincial government is sticking by its decision to restrict Hospital Insurance Service benefits to persons actually confined to hospital, Health Minister A. D. Turnbull made clear in an address Thursday night to the B.C. Hospital Association in Vancouver.

Talk that the government might extend the benefits of hospital insurance to cover outpatients is without foundation, he declared.

"We consider the inclusion of out-patient benefits is just not possible at this time," he explained.

U.B.C. Reds Now Stated 'Underground'

VANCOUVER (BUP)—University of British Columbia Communists have apparently gone "underground," according to former L.P.P. Campus Club secretary George Stewart.

Only two students belonged to the club, although Stewart estimated more than 60 U.B.C. students share Communist views.

Stewart said main cause of the decline was the Gordon Martin case, where an L.P.P. Club member was barred from practising law in British Columbia.

The place of security

There is a realm where hope is no longer precarious. It is the realm of unwavering spiritual understanding. It is the realm of Truth.

How may we find it? Through knowing (understanding) the same truth which Jesus knew, and which he promised would "make us free."

The Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, plainly shows the way. To any sincere student this great book steadily unlocks the treasures of truth in the Bible and proves, by healing the sick, their practicability today.

It may be bought, borrowed or read at all Christian Science Reading Rooms. The coupon is also for your use.

COLEMAN'S COLUMN

By JIM COLEMAN

It was only fitting that Ralph Allen should have been selected to write the biography of James Archibald McLarnin which is currently being serialized in Maclean's magazine under the title of "Don't Call Me Baby Face." It was not only fitting but downright inevitable since Allen is the editor of the magazine in question.

Coleman

In awarding the McLarnin assignment, which necessitated a long and dangerous journey to Hollywood, Allen decided that the mission must be undertaken by some former sports-writer on the Maclean's staff. By a very odd coincidence, it transpired that Mr. Allen himself was the only former sports-writer employed by that magazine. "Imagine that!" says Mr. Allen now. "I wanted to give some member of the staff an opportunity to hob-nob with all those gorgeous tomatoes-out-in-the-film-colony-and-it-turned-out that I had to take the job myself. Oh, fudge!"

His Record Stands Unchallenged

McLarnin won well over 90 per cent of the bouts in which he engaged. Allen, for his part, lost 100 per cent of his bouts. Never in the history of the Marquis of Queensberry's rules has one man posted such an unblemished record of defeats.

"My first bout was with the school bully in Oxbow, Sask," says Mr. Allen. "I felt obliged to trounce him so that he would desist from terrorizing the smaller children. He beat me rather badly, employing a left hook and snowballs in which were concealed small hunks of coal. He gave me an inferiority complex from which I never really recovered and he continued to be a successful bully—the last I heard of him, he was going around the country, foreclosing mortgages on all the farmers."

Mr. Allen never really entered the ring, of course, but he fought his way back and forth across the country, defending his honor as a sports-columnist. Some of his best bouts were fought in the lobby of Winnipeg's Woodbine Hotel and in the elevators of the Winnipeg Tribune building but the results were always the same. At one stage he tired of explaining the discolored areas around his eyes. He equipped himself with calling-cards which he distributed to those who asked him about his damaged features. The cards bore the cryptic message: "None of Your Damn Business."

Editorial opinion concerning Allen's fistful accomplishment appears to have been fairly unanimous. Sports editors of the period who were queried, replied as follows:

Harry Scott, Calgary Albertan: "A fine boy—and generous, too." Ralph Wilson, Calgary Herald: "Allen never lost his natural poise, even when he was lying flat on his back."

Johnny Buss, Winnipeg Tribune: "He had the heart but unfortunately he couldn't get it out of his chest to hit anyone with it."

Reputation Nearly Ruined

Well-meaning friends have attempted to circulate the rumor that Allen once was seen to win a bout in a Toronto street, outside the Royal York Hotel. "That's a nasty canard," says Allen. "Some one is attempting to ruin my reputation. I remember the incident vividly—the other fellow slipped and I fell on top of him."

Allen scored at least one moral victory which your agent witnessed. It occurred at the Firemen's Ball in Toronto in 1942 and Allen was wearing the uniform of the Royal Canadian Artillery. An intruder made a disparaging remark concerning the army.

Allen removed his spectacles to open hostilities. As Allen was removing his spectacles, Stornoway-Pete McRitchie, a Hebridean southpaw, leaned over Allen's shoulder and demolished Allen's opponent with a single punch.

Allen blinked, replaced his spectacles and regarded the victim thoughtfully. "My," said Mr. Allen. "I guess I don't know my own strength."

The other day, your agent visited Allen's office and listened to him describe his long visit with McLarnin in California. He told how McLarnin completely dispelled the legend that Jimmy and his manager, Pop Foster, constantly were bedevilled by New York gangsters who attempted to muscle-in on them. As a matter of fact, the only occasion on which McLarnin was exposed to underworld influences was one lunch-hour when, innocently, he shared a lemon pie with the late "Legs" Diamond in a New York restaurant.

They Never Come Back

Apparently, Mr. Allen never has abandoned the idea of staging a successful fistic comeback. "Look at this," he said, leaping to his feet and bending over with his left fist extended. "Jimmy showed me how to throw that one-two punch. Mammy—if I'd known about this a few years ago, I would have ruined some of those babies back on the prairies."

Crouched, and advancing in the manner of a man about to net a panda, Allen skulked around his office throwing punches. We arose abruptly and reached for our hats. As we reached the door, we looked back.

There was a strange look on Mr. Allen's face. He was still bent over and his left fist was extended but he wasn't throwing any punches.

"Well, old pal," we said. "Let us know when we can do anything for you."

"You can do something for me RIGHT NOW, old pal," moaned Mr. Allen, with tears of frustration starting in his eyes. "Come over here and help me straighten my back."

They never come back!

Oakley Sinks Long One As Totems Nip College

Victoria High School Totems edged the Victoria College Vikings, 47 to 46, in a spectacular, hard-checking game played at the High School gym last night before a mob of cheering students.

The Vikings rang up the first five points but were down 7 to 6 at the quarter. After the Totems enlarged their lead to 15 to 7, the Vikings opened up and grabbed a 24-to-7 lead at the breather. In the high-scoring third quarter, the Totems dropped 10 points behind before narrowing the gap to three points going into the finale.

In the wild fourth quarter, 14 fouls were called, making a game total of 41. The Vikings' lead was slowly whittled down, and with one and a half minutes left to play the Totems took a 44-to-42 lead. College tied it, but the Totems took a one-point lead on Lorne Oakley's free shot. College went one point ahead with 10 seconds left to play when Archie McIntosh sank a long one from centre.

Then Oakley shot from right-centre and scored, giving the Totems a narrow one-point win and sending the hysterical Victoria High School students home hoarse but happy.

ZARRY HIGH MAN

Peter Zarry netted 12 points to lead the Totems, while Oakley scored 10. Cedric Robb, a non-student member of the College, had 14 points to lead the Vikings. Bob Affleck was close behind with 11.

In a preliminary game, the Victoria High School girls beat the College quintette, 26 to 20. Flo Pickering led Vic High with 14 points while Betty Yardley of the College had 10.

The Red Light Flashed On This Play

Times photographers Bill Halkett and Irving Strickland are getting pretty hot with their flashbulbs these days. On Tuesday night Strickland was "Johnny on the spot" when Jack McIntyre scored against the Vancouver Canucks. Last night Halkett was on the "bit" when centre Eddie Dorohoy swept in alone on Lucien Dechene of the Royals to count the Cougars' lone tally in the 1 to 1 tie game. The big, grinning defenceman bearing down on Dorohoy is Babe Pratt, playing coach of the Royals. McIntyre is in the back-ground.

ON THE OUTDOOR FRONT

Once Bitten, Twice Shy, Thorsen Has Qualms About Dead-Deer Tale

By ROY THORSEN

I still well remember that day some 17 years ago when I was a rank greenhorn at this game and Rebel Mowat made his appearance on my horizon.

He told me a fantastic yarn. I said that's for me, headed for the office and dashed off the story. Wiser heads at the office, however, were suspicious. Where did he get that yarn? They asked. I told them who the author was...

Thorsen

...the story was hastily transferred to the wastebasket. It was about a deer on the run in an apple orchard. In its panic the deer ran up a ladder left against a tree by a picker. Its horns got snarled up in the limbs—a sitting duck target for the hunter. In falling from the tree, one of the deer's antlers pierced the hunter's arm and he was hospitalized. (Oh, how green can a guy be?)

ANOTHER?—NO

Well, the reason I bring that to mind was the telephone call I received Thursday. After listening for a while my mind raced back to that old experience. Narrator was Stan (Blondy) Williams... you people who know Stan are acquainted with his love to tell a story. And, brother, my first thoughts were he'd made this up out of thin air.

It was the story about that buck deer that died from a heart attack after the hunter had shot at it, and missed. If you don't believe me, get in touch with the fellows in on the play, he says. I buzzed Gordon English who was with Rod Hunt, who did the shooting. Yep, he said, it was true. Rod fired. The deer went down. It died—but there was no sign to show Rod's bullet had hit the buck anywhere. (Dear friends, you take it from there).

Mrs. H. Vaio Wins Par Competition

Finishing five up, Mrs. H. Vaio captured the women's par competition at the Colwood Golf Club Thursday. Runner-up was Mrs. T. W. Cotton.

The annual B. championship class competition for the Helen Crowe Trophy will open at Colwood Monday. Entrants are urged to phone Mrs. W. H. Lawson at Garden 3078.

the Victoria Gun Club grounds, Albert Head Road. Trap and skeet shooting start at 1. Turkey shoots if shooters want them.

Chief of Police John Blackstock and Bill Bridgewood saw one moose in the Cariboo last week. They shot it.

COHO ON FLY

Alex Alexander enjoyed half-hour sporty battles with coho recently in Sooke River tide-waters. Wading, with a six-ounce rod, six-pound test leads and casting bucktail flies he reeled in a day's allowable limit of three salmon over five pounds. They were coho, 9 to 12 pounds. Next day he scored a five-pound coho and a 17-pound dog salmon.

Wilson snipe are showing good throughout the area at present time. Hunters hope they'll still be around when the curtain goes up on the season, Nov. 11.

Interclub Final At Colwood Sunday

Colwood Golf Club will be the scene of the second half of the Colwood-Gorge Vale Golf Club inter-club match Sunday morning.

The Gorge Vale dividers enter the match with a four-point lead which they established in the opening round on their home course two weeks ago.

Complete draw and starting times follow:

8-9, P. Palmer and W. Court vs. J. Clark and R. Carroll.
9-10, K. Kerr and T. Burns vs. H. Hinks vs. W. Hird.

'Tie Game, She Not Good', Says Roger

Cougars Outplay Royals But Settle For Draw

By BILL WALKER

I met Roger Lay Hjay (Leger) last night.

He not de same French-Canadian mon I herd abot from Tree Rivers. Dis one is de coach of de Cougars, by gar.

"Good game," I said, by way of making conversation.

"Non," reply Roger. "It is not good 'less we win. We should tak game by tree goul. Tie score not good."

"Dat puck, she bounce too much out dere. Maybee they don't freeze heem properly. Always she bounce. De frig, dat okay, but should put heem in water, den dey froze nice, tight. Why dey dont use oder make I no know. It much better."

"How was the ice," I countered, getting around to the question of the moment now that the 1 to 1 tie with New Westminster had been so quickly dealt with.

"Ice, she not too good again," Roger he say, "I no know de trouble."

Meanwhile Eddie "Pistol" Dorohoy who scored the Cougars' lone goal at 9:19 of the third period was ranting for the club medico and between breaths was parrying questions with: "No, I didn't kick the puck into the net, I got it on my stick outside the net."

The rest of the boys were giving Eddie the doing about walking all over the Royals' agile Lucien Dechene but "Pistol"—he must have got the moniker for his quick repartee—gave back more than he received.

Bob Frampton was dejected as he sat in a half undressed state. "If I only hadn't let them get the play started. It was my fault."

Bob was referring to the Royals' tying goal at 12:06 of the third stanza when Hermie Gruhn

	W	L	T	P	A
Portland	7	2	0	49	32
New Westminster	6	4	1	47	34
VICTORIA	5	5	2	29	25
Tacoma	5	5	2	29	27
Vancouver	3	5	1	17	25
Seattle	3	5	1	17	25

took a double pass from Bobby Love and Bob Paul to beat Hec Hightown with a screened shot.

"Don't worry about it," countered Dorohoy. "One point's a point isn't it?" There was no answer.

Another individual in a bewildered state of mind was captain Bernie Strongman. Bernie was trying to explain to himself and anyone else who cared to listen just how he missed the open net on one particular try in the third period.

"I took my time; had my spot all picked out, then I shot. The next thing I knew the puck was going past the post. How I missed it I'll never know. I guess I took too much time."

IT JUST HAPPENED

Rawboned Hec Hightown didn't have much to say. "I never saw the shot, but I could see the play coming. But sometimes there's just nothing you can do about a thing like that. But did you see that Long (Stan Long) in his second game trial? When he hits 'em they stay hit."

And when you figure it all out, these fellows who were in the game were right. A tie game isn't much good when you outplay the other fellow by a wide margin. Two points are much better than one. Then the other guy doesn't get any.

Frampton shouldn't feel so bad either. There were other mistakes that could have resulted in goals, but didn't.

And as for Strongman. Well, everyone's entitled to a couple of bad shots now and then. But then a captain feels his responsibility.

Hightown also need offer no excuses. He stopped every other Royal drive, including the amazing total of 15 shots in a busy first period.

About Long: "If he's not good enough for the Cougars now, I don't know what they do want." Dorohoy: He can talk for himself. He will anyway so it's not

TODAY'S COAST SOCCER OFF; MAY BE RESCHEDULED NOV. 25

Due to the uncertainty of the weather and the predicted heavy rainfall this afternoon, today's Coast League Soccer match at Athletic Park between the United and Vancouver City was postponed, president Harry Young announced. The other game at Callister Park in Vancouver between North Shore and New Westminster Royals was still on schedule.

Young said the game would likely be fitted into the schedule Nov. 25 when both the Vancouver City and Victoria United elevens were idle.

Broda To Rest Again As Boston Seeks First Win

Boston's winless and goal-shutout king with three straight, will sit this affair out as the Leafs go after their fifth consecutive triumph. One of his shutouts was scored against the Bruins in Boston 2 to 0.

The Bruins are unlikely to find Al Rollins, the Leafs' second-string netminder, a soft touch. He substituted capably for Broda in Chicago last Sunday when the 36-year-old veteran was given his first rest of the season.

In tonight's other games, Chicago invades Detroit and New York Rangers will be entertained by the second-place Montreal Canadiens. On Sunday, Canadiens play at New York, the Leafs at Chicago and Boston at Detroit.

WEAK ATTACK

Offensively, the Bruins have appeared weak this season. They've scored but three goals in five starts. However, only six goals have been scored against them, which indicates strength in the defence department. Goalie Jack Gelineau has the best goals-against average in the league.

Bashing Bill Barilko will be back in the line-up for the Leafs, bringing their roster of defencemen back up to four. Barilko suffered a knee injury in Boston 10 days ago in a collision with Paul Ronty. Still sidelined, also with a knee injury, is Toronto rookie Hugh Bolton.

The Chicago-Detroit tussle will be a battle for third place, and the Hawks enter the game fresh from a convincing 5 to 1 victory at home Thursday over Canadiens.

Montreal came out of that game somewhat chastened but without injury. They'll be at full strength and determined to show their large following that the Chicago rout was just one of those things.

That bodes no good for the Rangers, who have been no great shakes offensively in six starts to date. They've scored only six goals while 15 have been poked past their goalie, Chuck Rayner.

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER

This took place in the Vesper Club, a well known but little publicized spot on a side street in Philadelphia. Just how we happened to be behind the barred door has no place in this story, except to say it was recommended to us as a top-grade eating place following the night-consuming chore of securing world series tickets. And out of this gathering may have come two eastern U.S. entries for the Empress golf tournament.

Ben Casali, a chap of recent acquaintance, who was in Philly for the series, had the floor. Ben, who was famished, was pleading with the proprietor for even a dry crust of bread. But no such luck. The chefs had long since gone to bed.

Ben is also a sportsman, and he had just returned from a fishing trip with a business associate named Joe Perini, who was also present. If you've followed baseball you will probably recall the name Perini as being associated with the Boston Braves. It was the same guy. The head man of the National League club.

Even The Waldorf, Ben?

"You say you cover golf," Ben said, after again being refused some solid nourishment. "And you've got a big midwinter tournament in Victoria. Could you do me a favor and get an article in the Boston paper?"

"Well, that's something I can't be certain of," I answered. "What is it?"

"Gee, I'm so hungry I could eat at the Waldorf," Ben said, as he tugged at the waiter's arm in vain. "But this is it: I've always wanted to get out to the west coast for a holiday and that tournament you mention sounds like the ideal set-up. I'll tell you what you do. You publish the fact that Joe and I will be out there and I'll make certain we come."

Boston Papers, Please Copy

"We've got an aircraft so won't need much notice. Just write and give us the particulars. You know we aren't such bad golfers at that. A couple of weeks ago we won the 'Jimmy' tournament (a polo benefit affair) in Boston. I play to a seven and Joe has a 10 handicap. I sure wish you'd get that in the Boston press. I just love to make those guys eat crow." The mention of eating made Ben furious. "Come on, let's get a steak," he said, almost pulling Sid Watson's arm out of its socket as he made his exit.

I wouldn't like to suggest for a moment that I had anything to do with an article in the current issue of Sport magazine concerning the mayhem they call hockey in the National Hockey League, but apparently I hit the nail right on the button when I expressed the view that the N.H.L. version of the puck-chasing art is a little more than "rugged."

Sport reports that unless something is done to eliminate the murderous tactics that have become the hallmark of modern hockey, some player is going to wind up on an icy slab in a city morgue. It also lays the blame for the present brawling, slamming brand of hockey strictly on the shoulders of the club owners.

Blame Money-Hungry Magnates

It credits the modern trend to:

1. "Encouragement by short-sighted, dollar-hungry magnates who believe fans are more interested in blood than in clever scoring manoeuvres.

2. "Fines are light, not generally taken seriously and usually paid by the clubs rather than the players."

3. "Many rough players are that way only because they are ordered by managers and coaches to 'take care' of rivals who are regarded as dangerous scoring threats.

4. "The loose interpretation of the rules governing the game allows for the violent checking that produces the most injuries and invites the most slug-fests."

"The obvious answer," says Sport, "is that when a fine game shows signs of degenerating into mass slaughter, it's high time to take action." And this opinion is shared by many others associated with the game.

R. Benn Leads Aces To Win Over Garrison

Brentwood Aces returned to the Saanich and Suburban Basketball League Friday night and wound up on the right foot, coming out on top of Garrison, 33 to 25, in the opening senior B men's contest at the Brentwood Badminton Hall.

The game was fast and well contested for an opening tussle, but the Aces held an edge over the soldiers throughout. Pivot man Ronnie Benn led the Aces' assault with an even dozen points while R. Harran was high man for Garrison with 11.

In a preliminary, McMorrans captured a narrow 16 to 14 decision over Brentwood in an intermediate B boys' game. Campbell turned in a sparkling effort for the Cordova Bay entry, notching all but four of their points. R. Karadinos led Brentwood with seven.

The league was officially opened by president Ernie Stock. First toss-up was made by R. Slugggett, long-time Brentwood resident.

Two games are billed Monday. At Sidney, the home club will stack up against McMorrans in an intermediate B boys' tussle at 8, while at the Centennial gym at 7, Sooke will tackle the Saanich All-Blacks in another intermediate B boys' match.

Teams and scores in the senior game follow:
Garrison-Harran 11, Craig 4, Strianni, Belley, McFarley 2, Walker, Rogers, Millett, Sparrow 8.

Brentwood Aces-A. Renn 12, Brown 4, W. Benn, J. Turner 7, P. Benn 2, Slugggett 4, W. Turner 2, Lee 2.

Rizzuto Named Most Valuable

NEW YORK—Little Phil Rizzuto, brilliant New York Yankee shortstop, Thursday won the 1950 most-valuable-player award in the American League by a landslide.

The scooter capped his best season by polling 16 of 23 first-place votes of a committee of the Baseball Writers' Association.

Boston's Billy Goodman, league batting champion with a .354 average, polled four first-place ballots. The other three went to Yogi Berra, the Yankees' fine catcher. Ted Williams of Boston, most valuable a year ago but sidelined by injuries for half the season, finished way down the list.

Joe DiMaggio, the Yankee clipper and a three-time winner, was ninth.

Bettors Storm Mutuels As Mistake Made

TORONTO (CP) — Scores of bettors—some of them angry and some delighted—stormed the stewards' stands and pari-mutuels at Dufferin Park Friday when a wrong result was announced in the featured sixth race.

Pennask won the race in a photo-finish. Dud's Worry ran second and Tab Wales came in third. But Tab Wales number was erroneously sent to the mutuels as the second horse and cashiers began paying off.

When the finish photos were posted, bettors milled around the stewards' stand. The stewards immediately ordered the result changed.

By that time many spectators had torn up place tickets on Dud's Worry and others had cashed place tickets on Tab Wales.

Dud's Worry paid $10.50 and $5.00. Tab Wales paid $5.90.

Mutuel clerks took the names and addresses of persons who claimed to have torn up winning tickets on Dud's Worry.

During the confusion, police arrested five men and charged them with attempting to cash forged betting tickets.

DOES NOT REGRET BASEBALL SUIT

Danny Gardella Changes Tune; Now Sings Sentimental Ballads

MONTREAL (BUP) — Danny Gardella, the former New York Giant who once filed a $300,000 damage suit against organized baseball, has become a singer of sentimental ballads.

The muscular former outfielder packed his songs with tenderness when he sang before an audience in the old Galety Theatre here.

He went through choruses of "They Say It's Wonderful," "All the Things You Are," and "The Desert Song" in a soft baritone. When the applause rose, he did a Gardella version of "Sorrento."

The Galety crowd still was clamoring for more when Gardella stepped backstage into the wings. He couldn't have given them more if he had wanted to—they had just heard his complete repertoire.

Backstage, Danny pulled up two chairs and refused a cigarette. "It's good to kill old habits," he said. "I have to watch my voice now. Besides, nothing's really necessary except in relation to a goal."

On stage, Gardella was a sentimental and backstage, he showed up as a second-rate psychologist and a first-class actor. "I don't want you to think I'm stage-struck," he explained.

"Going out on the stage is a terror to me. But I attack that which I fear and do what the coward in me will not do."

SPIRITUAL AID

"I sing for my spiritual development," he said. "Show business is helping me. It's making me an extrovert. I want to reach the stage where nothing will break my heart again."

The dim lights of backstage threw a soft glow over Danny's handsome face and were the finishing touches to Act IV of the Gardella tragedy. He was willing to construct that tragedy in its proper sequence. But first, he reconsidered and asked for a cigarette. "I won't inhale," he told himself.

Since retiring from baseball, he explained, he realized that "happiness doesn't come from money but from within."

"Money was important to me back in the spring of '46," he said. "That's why I jumped to the Mexican League."

NO REGRETS

Gardella said he didn't regret that move, nor take back any of the things he said about baseball commissioner A. B. (Happy)

Chandler who sentenced him to five years' exile from organized baseball.

He also said he still felt "morally" right in the $300,000 suit he filed against baseball two years ago, challenging baseball's reserve clause as "an anti-trust violation."

RECONCILIATION

"But I'm sorry baseball still thinks me a pest," he said. "I want a friendly reconciliation with baseball."

Gardella was suddenly himself. "I'll be a ball player again," he said. "This show business keeps me young. I'm in good shape, too. I've only lost eight pounds since I retired."

He flexed the muscle of his powerful right arm. "Feel that," he said.

It felt all right to me.

Annuity Worth More To 'Rocky' Now Than Fame

NEW YORK (AP)—"I don't want to be famous. I just want to stack up that old annuity."

Rocky Graziano was talking. The new Graziano who last night barely squeaked past welterweight Tony Janiro of Youngstown, Ohio, in a close 10-rounder at Madison Square Gardens.

The Rock flailed Tony. Between savage misses he raked Janiro with an unexpected body attack. He jarred his mouthpiece loose with looping rights. Once he wrestled Tony through the ropes. But he never knocked him down.

Still there seemed to be some of the old fire missing in Graziano, who used to eat welterweights for breakfast back in the old "rockabye Rocky" days. Through the early rounds young Tony made him eat leather from sharp left jabs and hooks.

One fellow walking out of the Garden remarked: "You have to be an accountant to cover Graziano fights any more." He didn't mean Rocky's out-of-town fights, where he scored five straight knockouts. He meant his Garden scraps with Janiro.

CLOSE DECISION

Last March 31, Rocky and Tony fought a draw, decided on the vote of the referee who scored it even in rounds, 5-5 and 10-10 in points.

The rematch last night was close, too. Referee Ruby Goldstein and Judge Joe Agnello saw it 5-5. Goldstein gave Graziano an edge in points 10-8 and Agnello 7-6. Judge Artie Schwartz found for Graziano 6-4 in rounds.

So it was a unanimous ballot, but two officials had to go to Eddie Eagan's point system to break a draw. On the A.P. card it also was 5-5 with Graziano a point winner. Graziano lost the fifth round on all cards because of a low blow.

What next for Graziano? Matchmaker Al Well of the International Boxing Club wants him to fight the Nov. 10 Garden winner between Paddy Young and Laurent Dauthuille. But before that he fights Honeychille Johnson in Philadelphia Nov. 13.

Janiro, who did a fine job against Graziano until he tired in the late rounds, will be in line for future Garden main bouts.

Graziano, still way off in his timing, weighed 158½. Janiro was 153½ on the night of his 23rd birthday.

The bout, reopening the Garden to boxing for the fall season, drew 10,461 fans and a gate of $55,270.

House I Wins Indoor Meet

House One amassed a total of 36 points, 14 above their nearest competitors. Houses Two and Three, which tied with 22 points each, to win the annual Victoria High School Indoor Track Meet Friday. House Three was the defending champs.

The meet consisted of 11 events, two relay and nine novelty races, including the orange roll, peanut relay, thread the needle race, book race and sack race.

House Two took an early 10-point lead, but by the end of seven events was one point behind House Four. House One had 15 and House Three followed with 13 points.

In the last four events, House One had three first and two seconds to gain 21 points while House Four only added one point to its total and House Two added five.

Vic Griffin Tops Yacht Club Derby

Vic Griffin, vice-commander of Capital City Yacht Club, won the club's recent annual fishing derby with a 10½-pound salmon, and also took third prize with a 7½-pounder.

Jim Dangerfield took second place with a 10-pound fish.

Entrants were allowed to fish anywhere as long as they weighed in at the club's headquarters at Canoe Cove. All boats got some fish, mostly too small to mention, as fishing conditions were generally poor.

RECORD PRICE PAID FOR SOCCER STAR

LONDON (AP)—Sunderland Friday paid £30,000 (about $30,000) for a soccer player—the highest sale price in the history of English football.

The player involved was Trevor Ford who has competed in international games for Wales and who belonged to Aston Villa of the English Football League.

Players who are sold here can't share in the purchase price but they do have the last word on any sale. They first must agree to be sold and then they have the right to turn down an offer from any club they don't want to join.

The previous record sale price was the £26,700 paid last December by Preston North End to Sheffield Wednesday for Eddie Quigley.

Gordon Now Free To Join Solons

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Joe Gordon, the former New York Yankee and Cleveland Ace, says he now is free to take the manager's job with the Sacramento Pacific Coast League Club.

Gordon said that when he learned Boston Red Sox would not give him waivers to permit him to leave the majors, he resorted to another device in baseball law—that of getting himself declared a free agent by Cleveland, which held his contract. As a 10-year man in the majors, Gordon had that privilege.

Two weeks ago Gordon agreed to manage the Solons.

Mrs. J. Strang New Golf Captain

Mrs. J. Strang was elected captain of the Uplands Women's Golf Club at a general meeting Friday afternoon. She succeeds Mrs. B. H. Anderson. Mrs. N. Bamford will succeed Mrs. B. Shore as club secretary. The two retiring officers received presentations from their clubmates during the meeting.

In a hidden hole competition preceding the meeting, Mrs. C. S. Humber was named winner and Mrs. C. Richards runner-up.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Mario Trigo, 138, Los Angeles, stopped Joe Lopes, 131, Sacramento (7).

Flyers Avenge Only Loss At Hands Of Caps

REGINA (CP) — Edmonton Flyers beat the only team that has won over them this season when they defeated Regina Caps 5 to 2 last night in a Western Canada Senior Hockey League game before 2,681 paid fans.

Two of the league-leading Flyers goals came when the Regina net was unguarded in the third period. Coach Ken Doraty yanked goalie Bev Bentley with nearly 2½ minutes remaining, and the score 3 to 1, when Edmonton defenceman Mac Colville was penalized.

The strategy backfired when Ray Barry, who led Flyers' marksmen with two goals for the night, pushed the puck into the empty net. Elmer Kreller flipped a shot the length of the ice with four seconds remaining to score another goal-less goal. Six Regina attackers were storming around the Flyer net when Kreller got his shot away.

However the Caps six-forward attack did provide one goal, sandwiched between the two Edmonton empty-netters.

Colin Kilburn got a goal and two assists to share Flyer hot-shot honors with Barry. Captain Gordon Watt netted the other.

NEW LONDON—Connkmart Suffoletta, 134½, Bridgeport, out-pointed Jay Parlin, 134, Newark, N.J. (8).

Golfer Ben Hogan Busy Man As Cameras Film His Story

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—Golfer Ben Hogan, despite what you may have read, is far from being "embarrassed" about Hollywood's film version of his life, "Follow the Sun." Glenn Ford, who is playing the golf king, told me:

"Ben is on the set all the time. He's mighty particular about the way I hold a club and about my love scenes with Anne Baxter (playing Mrs. Hogan). He wants everything to be perfect. But I think it's more of a desire to have his wife and the sport of golf depicted properly than any personal vanity. And brother, I'm happy to have him around." Wife Eleanor Powell says Glenn is nixing all New York TV bids for an obvious reason—the video boys haven't yet learned the secrets of properly photographing a "tap dancer." Bob Hope wanted her for both of his big shows, but she turned him down.

Pat Medina is off to Rome after the first of the year to do a film. She and Richard Greene attended the "Harvey" premiere, but no reconciliation. Evelyn Keyes is still yelling for that comedy. "If a good one comes along, I'll even buy it myself." . . . Joan Leslie will do a daily radio series to be called "People Are Wonderful."

SONJA'S ON THIN ICE
Sonja Henle and hubby Winthrop Gardner aren't seeing eye to eye on Sonja's weight.

"She eats more than I do, but she's too thin," Gardner told me. "Last summer I got her up to 106 pounds. She looked wonderful."

"But, darling," protested Sonja, "I weigh 103."

Gardner snorted. "Look, this is pap talking. You weigh 99 pounds."

I asked about Sonja's lightning calculation talent when she whizzes into the middle of a packed arena on her skates. "One spin," grinned Gardner, "and Sonja counts everybody in the house."

Now it's Barbara Britton as a bullwhip toter out to bring law and justice to the old west in "The Bandit Queen," and Maria Hart, the 5-foot-10 glamazon, peering down a rifle barrel in "Cattle Queen." There's even talk of bullwhips and caballero suits for the pinafare set in men's chandising tie-ups.

Gail Patrick's hair is now the shade of the locks of Whistler's mother. She's a new member of Barbara Stanwyck's "let's-go-grey" club. . . . Mac West won't receive even a streetcar token from Paramount on its remake of "Diamond Lil" as a Betty Hutton starrer, but she still controls all stage rights. . . . Romeo Vincent gets his big movie break as a No. 1 comedian in Jon Hall's "Hurricane Island." . . . Gary Crosby and Leslie Gargan, teenage sons of Bing and Bill, are sitting out their high school dances—playing in a five-piece band. Gary sings, plays the drums and the uke.

Death Of Al Jolson Marks Big Change In Show Business

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Looking at the week's news: The death of Al Jolson Monday night was a grave loss to the magic of the show world. His tireless singing and jesting will be missed by all.

After the first shock of Jolson's passing was over, Hollywood observers discussed the significance of it. They concluded that a great era of American show business is fading.

It's true that Jolson could keep up with today's popular favorites—the Hopes, the Crosbys, the Bennys and Sinatras. But actually he harked to the time when amusement was not as mechanized and standardized as it is today.

Jolson got his start in minstrel shows and vaudeville. He climbed to top fame in Broadway shows at the Winter Garden. Among his contemporaries were such great names as Will Rogers, W. C. Fields, Lillian Russell, George M. Cohan, Eddie Foy, Bert Williams, Marilyn Miller, Weber and Fields. All are now dead.

And minstrel shows and vaudeville are dead, too. The question arises: Where will the Jolson of the future come from?

Speaking of oldtimers, there are still some around and they're going strong. People like Eddie Clark, Jimmy Durante, Bobby Clark, George Jessel and Sophie Tucker.

Title of the week is "Love Is Better Than Ever," which will star Elizabeth Taylor and Larry Parks. Like the industry's current slogan, "Movies Are Better Than Ever," this brings up a number of issues.

Did love, like the movies, hit a slump after the war? If love is better than ever, how much better? What has brought the improvement? This is very confusing. Maybe they'd better call the picture "Love Is As Good As It Ever Was."

Color TV Not Knocking Out Ordinary Sets

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP)—Color television doesn't mean the black and white sets are useless. The latter will continue to get all the programs they've been getting so far.

Under a new decision of the U.S. Federal Communications Commission approving the Columbia Broadcasting System method of color, this will be a supplementary service for a long time.

And the supplementary color service will cost extra money, whether the black and white set is converted or the customer waits to buy a color set when it reaches the market.

How soon color television will be available, along with color set converters, is a question. Assuming there are no legal delays, CBS has promised to have 20 hours a week of color programs on the air within two months. One New York manufacturer says he will start putting color converters on the market in a few weeks.

The public itself will determine how soon color sets become available in quantity. The public demand also will determine the frequency and calibre of color broadcasts.

The CBS color at present has a practical limit of 12½-inch picture size for home sets because of the motor-driven color disc used to add color to the images coming over the air.

Moreover, CBS says this does not bar the use of converters on black and white sets with larger tubes, up to 19 inches.

New Popcorn Crunchless

CHICAGO (AP)—Here's good news for the folks in the row ahead—crunchless popcorn is on the way.

An industry spokesman said a variety of the tidbit has passed through the experimental stage and soon will be on the market.

The spokesman at the annual International Popcorn Industries convention said the new popcorn will taste as good as ever, but will be more orange in color.

By CARTER DAVIDSON

PARIS (AP)—Maurice Chevalier has begun his 5th year on the Paris stage by taking off his clothes.

He calls it his "strep teeze." The "strep teeze" at Montmartre's Variety Theatre involves a quick change fro "Ma Pomme."

Maurice as a tramp sings, then changes for his finale into the luxedo-and-straw hat.

"I'm not going to show you any more than you would see on any bathing beach, so I'll just change here," he says.

Then, as he peels down to his shorts and puts on his tuxedo, he mimics a burlesque strip dancer going through her routine.

The FORMER MISS FREY

By Edwin Rutt

Copyright 1950 by NEA Service, Inc.

XVII

When the first shock of the thing was over, Ede was utterly amazed at her own reaction. It did not seem possible that anyone who had been as much in love as she had only a few short years ago could now receive such news with almost a sense of relief.

And yet, analyzing her life with Peter Flood dispassionately, she saw how, gradually but inexorably, Peter's attitude had turned the early affection she had felt for him to coolness, then to indifference, then at last to a strange uncomfortable sensation amounting nearly to distaste. In the first year of their marriage she had been only too willing to excuse his selfishness on the grounds of "temperament"; to indulge his whims, humors and petulance in the belief that they were nothing more than unpleasant camouflages hiding something really fine in Peter Flood.

GAVE NOTHING

But time had gone on and the fineness had not developed. Instead, Peter's temperament had increased; his attractiveness dwindled in proportion. The bald truth, Ede realized now, was that Peter was a taker. He took everything; he gave nothing. And when something he wanted but could not take dangled just out of his reach, he sulked about it interminably.

His obvious and unexpected disappointment at Ede's reduced financial condition after their marriage had been almost more than she could bear. It was horrible and, somehow, degrading. Ede thought a little bitterly that Peter felt like a man who buys a jewel and finds it only a cheap imitation.

Rereading his letter she had the feeling that he had not been entirely frank with her. It was devious, and not as explanatory as the circumstances would seem to demand. He said that for a long time he had been aware that they had "fallen out of love." He supposed she was aware of it, too. They seemed, he said, to be "drifting," with neither of them completely happy. And now that she appeared to have found a new interest, namely the business in New York, wouldn't it be better if they made a clean break?

He knew she would agree with him. "It hadn't worked out." One was no more to blame than the other. They were simply "unsuited." Surely, being intelligent people, they could accept this fact and do something about it. He made it clear that this was not one of his whims. He had thought about the situation for a good many months. He felt that both of them would be happier apart.

NO HIDDEN MOTIVE

He wound up this missive of evasiveness by disclaiming any ulterior motive.

She put the letter down with a feeling that her intelligence had been insulted.

From a disillusioning moment shortly after their marriage, Peter had displayed a shrewd and lively interest in financial affairs. And he certainly knew she had recently come into control of a fair-sized amount of money. Why he should ask for a divorce directly on top of this confused her completely. Peter seemed to be giving up just when his objective had come in sight.

Perhaps, Ede thought with a sardonic gleam in her long green eyes, it's more than money that bothers him. Perhaps I'm slipping, as a woman.

She did not answer his letter immediately. Nor did she say anything to anyone about the impending divorce. But she was glad now for the diversion created by the advertising business. She plunged into it even harder.

There was plenty to do, even with Mr. Northcott temporarily quiet. Old Mr. Lyons of Lyons Bread chose this moment to kick up one of his periodic fusses.

Lyons Bread was Reagan's account and Reagan's headache. But, in company with Reagan, Ede called upon Mr. Lyons. She found him a twitty little man with an irritable manner. He was upset about a newspaper campaign which Reagan had recently presented to him. Mr. Lyons, Mr. Lyons averred, didn't like anything about it.

PROVES EVASIVE

But when Reagan, with more patience than Ede would have suspected him of, tried to pin him down to just what he didn't like about the series of advertisements, Lyons apparently couldn't say. He pursed his mouth and replied evasively. There wasn't anything he could put his fingers on. It was the whole thing, the basic idea. He just didn't believe that these ads would sell bread. He fumed. Reagan let him fume. And after Mr. Lyons had exhausted himself, Reagan more or less forced the campaign down his throat.

"Now you see," he said to Ede, on the way home, "why contact men get grey."

"What a mealy-mouthed little man that is," Ede said. "I wonder you can stand him, Dan."

Reagan grinned. "He spends $600,000. I can stand a lot for the commission on that."

"But was it wise to make him take those ads, Dan? He didn't like them and you said the account was shaky."

Reagan spread his hands. "There's no other way to handle him. If we let him walk on us, well, he'll trample. We'd get up campaigns till the cows come home and he'd turn them down one after the other. No, we've got to be tough with him and take our chances."

Alberta Bachelor Assured Would-Be Brides Plentiful

GADSBY, Alta. (CP)—Folks in Gadsby, a little central Alberta town 110 miles northeast of Calgary, couldn't recall ever hearing Dan Wood, well-known district rancher, complain about his bachelor status.

They were mighty surprised to hear that in Montreal Dan had told reporters Friday that one of the things wrong with Gadsby was a woman shortage.

Dan, about to board the liner Empress of Canada for his native Cumberland, England, said he was fed up with his own cooking. Three-fourths of Gadsby's population wanted to get married, but there were not enough women to go round, he claimed.

Sure enough, there are plenty of bachelors in the Alberta community. But the town's feminine viewpoint is that most of them could have been married if they wished.

"The older fellows missed their chances," one married woman re-

BEHIND THE MIKE

By F. E. B.

October 28, 1950 (10)—The storms that have lashed the B.C. coast during the past week have convinced us that the seasons have changed, and we'll be spending more time at our hearthside. CKDA has many new programs in the planning stage to make your winter evenings, as well as throughout the day, interesting and entertaining.

COUNCIL OKAYS BROADCAST

The Victoria City Council has voted in favor of taking part in the CKDA series of panel discussions on civic and municipal affairs, soon to be broadcast. Other councils in the Greater Victoria area have been contacted, and as soon as plans are completed, broadcasts will begin. We'll be giving you more information about this interesting series in the near future.

MEET THE PEOPLE SERIES ENDS

McLean's MEET THE PEOPLE series which has been broadcast Thursday evenings at 8.30 for the past nine months, completed its run on CKDA on this past Thursday night. A new winter series sponsored by McLEAN'S will begin on November 2, featuring Gordon Reid in a program of familiar music that will be enjoyed by the whole family.

HOCKEY ON SUNDAY

The Portland game between the Victoria Cougars and Portland Eagles will be broadcast tomorrow night on CKDA at 9.05 with Bill Stephenson. Mc and Mc are presenting every away game played by the Victoria Cougars this hockey season.

LAURIER UNMASKED

After this column had gone to press, a lucky CKDA listener unmasked the FAMOUS CANADIAN and claimed $420.00. Her name was Mrs. Margaret Thompson of R.R. 3, Glyn Road. Mrs. Thompson is a Scottish war bride, who came to Canada in 1946 after marrying her husband... an army man... in 1944 at Dundee, Scotland, where she was born. In case many are wondering about the clues... let's explain them: "Three more months and 15 years, I had my biggest job." (Term as P.M.) "Nineteen became 20 and two made nine." (19th century turned to 20th century and two provinces joined to make nine in confederation during his term of office). "And it started with a mob" (the Riel Rebellion was responsible for Laurier's career). "The house of a noble, a seven-letter word" (Chateau... referring to Chateau Laurier). "would help you with a clue, so look for a title" (Sir Wilfrid Laurier). "A page from Gibbons" (stamp catalogue... his likeness appears on a Canadian stamp) "the money is for you." Simple when you know the clues, isn't it? Now... who is the NEW FAMOUS CANADIAN?

JOYCE KILMER STORY

Story of this famous author-ess will be broadcast Friday night on the FAMILY THEATRE with host Danny Thomas. Audrey Trotter and Richard Basehart will take part in the drama.

EDDIE CANTOR'S FAVORITE

Ronald Coleman broadcasts EDDIE CANTOR'S FAVORITE STORY tomorrow at 1.30. Anton Chekov's THE WINDOW. Every Sunday, a famous story... next week THE GLASS EYE.

BODY BUILDING JOBS by PACIFIC SHEET

Above are shown four examples of truck bodies, built to special order by the Pacific Sheet Metal Works in their Victoria shops. Top left is a capacious moving van while to the right is a flat-deck body with removable stake sides. Lower left is a moving van of different type while opposite is a work truck, made to special order for the B.C. Electric Gas Department. Pacific Sheet make a specialty of close adherence to given specifications and practical interpretation of the particular job for which the truck is intended. This is but one of the many types of work carried out in the fully equipped shops of the Pacific Sheet Metal Works Ltd., 1009 Yates St. in Victoria, and also in Nanaimo. Pacific Sheet Metal make anything from gutters to steel lockers.

Social Worker Charges Schools Forgetting God

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa says that education in Canada is headed toward materialism and godlessness—the goals of Communism.

The writer and social worker, in an address to the Ontario Public Schools Trustees Association, deplored the lack of religious principals in non-Catholic schools. It is the responsibility of elementary schools, she said, to teach children they are living in a democracy under God.

"A deep religious philosophy underlies the concept of democracy, involving such things as respect for the soul. We are putting democracy in the schools, but not God."

The University of Toronto, she said, is "a godless provincial university."

Easy To Draw For Hallowe'en

You become an artist and make a picture appear in the diagram to the right when you follow these simple directions.

Note that horizontal and vertical rows of dots are indicated by letters and numbers.

Start at the first intersection listed below, and with a soft pencil draw lines as indicated.

- 1-F to 2-C, 5-A, 10-F, 9-E, 9-C, 15-C, 18-D, 19-E, 18-D, 20-D, 19-E, 22-F, 23-G, 22-F, 24-F, 23-G, 22-K, 18-N.
- 1-F to 7-J, 9-I, 10-J, 11-J, 11-I, 34-H, 11-I, 10-H, 10-F, 34-G, 34-F, 31-S, 32-F, 33-F, 34-T, 34-O.
- 1-V to 1-R, 4-N, 8-L, 8-N, 11-P, 14-T, 15-T, 17-Q.
- 10-J to 9-L, 10-M, 10-L, 11-K, 14-K, 15-N, 20-N, 20-P, 19-Q, 16-Q, 15-S, 10-M to 10-O, 13-P, 12-R, 15-N.

Turn sideways to see what you have drawn.
Color appropriately with crayons or colored pencils.

Tune You Can Play On The Piano

F-D-C-E-D-C-C3-A-C2-G-E-C-D
(Repeat)
F-D-C-E-D-C-C3-A-C2-G-E-C-D-D-C
Then Play:
F-C2-C3-G-O-A-G-C2-A-F-A-G
F-D-C-E-D-C-C3-A-C2-G-E-C-D-D-C

This simple method enables you to pick out tunes on the piano and be the accompanist for a song or two at the Hallowe'en party. Place the "keyboard" at right before you at the piano and play the notes indicated below the "keyboard."
The tune is that of Old Folks at Home (Swanee River), Stephen Foster's beloved song. Practice it thoroughly.

Hallowe'en Party Trick

One of the most spectacular feats of paper folding is the construction of a Jacob's Ladder. It is a good stunt to master.
Practice with old newspapers cut into strips about 18 inches wide. At one of the narrow ends, fold a half-inch hem, around which the rest of the paper strip is to be very loosely rolled into a tube two inches. When the strip is rolled up to about six inches, and the hem is about six inches from the top, the strip may be inserted and rolled around the first tube.
When the tube is completed, an elastic band around each end will hold it together. About six inches from one end, tear through the

Dick Whittington Story Paralleled By Saga Of Victoria's Percy George

The famous story of Dick Whittington who heard the bells calling him to be Lord Mayor of London has been repeated in Canada, appropriately in Victoria with its label—"a little bit of England."

The locale of the story is changed. The Dick Whittington is Victoria's elderly Lord Mayor, Percy George, 72, who has been a boy in London, apprentice plumber and not enamored of the job.

Like Dick Whittington he felt the call to other fields. The bells called Dick Whittington to London to attain fame as mayor of that ancient capital. But in young George's case the call came from Canada.

HEEDED THE CALL

Percy George broke his apprenticeship ties to heed the call, the same way Dick Whittington suddenly turned around and headed for London.

Whittington became mayor of London, England. Percy George became mayor of Victoria, B.C. Although it is more than two score years since the lad, who set out for Canada in circumstances similar to those under which Whittington went to London, arrived on Canadian soil, there is just enough accent of the home-land flowing through his self-taught eloquence to fit in with the Whittington legend of a London Lord Mayor.

Like Whittington the young George was a Canadian-born boy, the fact that they came up the hard way to the posts of chief magistrates.

NEWSBOY IN LONDON

When he was seven years of age Percy George's father died and to supplement the family income young Percy sold newspapers on the streets of London.

The experience of being a newspaper boy was not a pleasant one, he later confessed the lad or he had started to develop in an admirable family environment.

It taught him self reliance and also gave him an insight into the life of the under-privileged which he has never forgotten. It is thought by his friends that it is more than likely that these early days on the London streets inspired him to enter public life with the object of playing a part in improving the lot of the less fortunate.

He was 13 when he left school to be apprenticed to a London plumber. Although the hours were long, the wages small and he was increased slowly until a lad was graduated and became a journeyman.

ALWAYS A STUDENT

Through his newsboy and apprenticeship days young George was always a student. In his geographical studies he had collected as London called to Dick Whittington. At the age of 15, two years after he started out to be a plumber, ber, he broke his apprenticeship and managed to acquire enough money for the then cheap fare offered in those days to English people wishing to come to Canada. He reached Quebec with 25 cents in his pocket and a package of sandwiches.

Canada may have been the end of the rainbow but there it was, no pot of gold waiting at the end of the rainbow. He had to make his way, he saved his first $50 and that was by working on a Port Hope, Ont., farm.

It might be thought the lad was disappointed in the change, without improvement, in his bid for a brighter future in a new land. The wages did not equal those he had earned either as a London newsboy or an embryo plumber. The work was harder and the hours longer. However, he did his job without complaint and in spite of the early rising and long hours that were spent as much time studying as working. He has spent while attending school.

BURNING THE MIDNIGHT OIL

His great ability to concentrate, his earnestness and his firm determination to educate himself to make his mark in Canada kept him at his books when, worn with the day's work, he felt tempted to fall into bed and sleep soundly until the early call to work in the morning.

Neither did nostalgia deflect him from his purpose. Although at this time he had not improved his fortunes, he had reached the land of his choice to be a plumber.

REWARD OF YEARS' SERVICE

Established and married in Victoria he started on the career of public service which includes six years as mayor, election as an alderman, president, vice-president, director or committeeman of more organizations than he can recall at a moment's notice. His election to the mayalty was a reward for many years of unselfish and untiring public service in many organizations.

He was marked for greater honors by his many friends in Victoria years before he was persuaded to make his first bid for civic office.

He was a member of the Victoria School Board from 1929 to 1939 and served as conscientiously and sincerely in that elective but unpaid position as he had in the paid position of a school trustee. During those years he was also a member of the Chamber of Commerce, president of the Teachers' Association, president of the Chamber of Commerce, president of the Victoria School Board.

Here his early studies stood him in good stead. Without the advantage of a college degree he stood out as a debater, speaker and thinker, and when occasion demanded as an orator.

The head of a happy household, the first thing the mayor did when he was elected mayor during the war was to write his wife a letter. Then, together, they read the news to their four sons overseas.

DISCREET, DIPLOMATIC

While Canada, where he has made his home and raised his family, has been his first love, his birth should still hold a place in his esteem. As a man in public life cementing friendship between nations, Mayor George played a vital part at a crucial time. Service men and officials from the neighboring United States and from the Old Country were frequent visitors during the war years. Mayor George was discreet and diplomatic. There were no unpleasant incidents. He did his part in cementing the ties of confidence and friendship between the three countries.

He worked to make visiting troops from other parts of Canada, the United States and Britain feel at home in Victoria and he did much to combat that loneliness and homesickness from which servicemen suffer. He showed his affection for the land of his birth by organizing the Mayor's Fund, through which thousands of food parcels were shipped to supplement the rations of the people of the Old Country.

The action of the young London apprentice in heeding the Whittington-like call to Canada benefited more than Percy George, Victoria and Victorians have gained much by his presence and leadership.

LIMITED POWERS

The President of the United States does not have constitutional power to pardon state prisoners; his powers extend only to federal prisoners.

FREEDOM LAW

An ancient Hebrew law commanded that all debtors be released from their debts every seventh year, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Use Right Hand To Beat Dempsey, Tunney Warned

By JIMMIE BRONSON
As told to Lester Bromberg

His stamina shot from the effects of the automobile crash, Bob Martin couldn't do a thing after his early right-hand gambling, and Floyd Johnson stopped him in 10 rounds.

I told Martin he was through. I was following Gen. John J. Pershing's orders when I made him stop. I had planned to try to take him to the top, but, failing that, I wasn't going to let him be exploited.

I arranged to have Martin enlist in the army, so as to insure pension rights. He's living in West Virginia, operating a gasoline station.

I watched Gene Tunney take a frightful drubbing from Harry Greb in their first fight, then I saw him dish it all back to the Pittsburgh Windmill.

But I was there for the real dress rehearsal of Gene's thrumming. He was in with Jeff Smith in New York, and I was handling the Old Globe, but in 15 rounds Gene had him on the floor four times and blackened his eyes.

BRONSON CALLED TURN

En route home I came across Gene and Billy Gibson, sitting in a compartment with the door open. "Gene, I want to congratulate you," I said. "You are the next heavyweight champion."

My prediction made an impression. When the first match with Jack Dempsey was made, I was called to camp.

Gene told me I was to be his chief second. When we finally were in the stadium—dressing-room, with the fight only a few minutes away, I felt the proper time had arrived. "Move away from Dempsey's left hook, and you'll never be in danger," I instructed Tunney.

"The first punch is going to be decisive. The first time Dempsey cooks his left, you've got to beat him with a right."

"God Almighty will take your right fist and land it so hard on Dempsey's chin you'll break the hand."

"But that punch will be the fight."

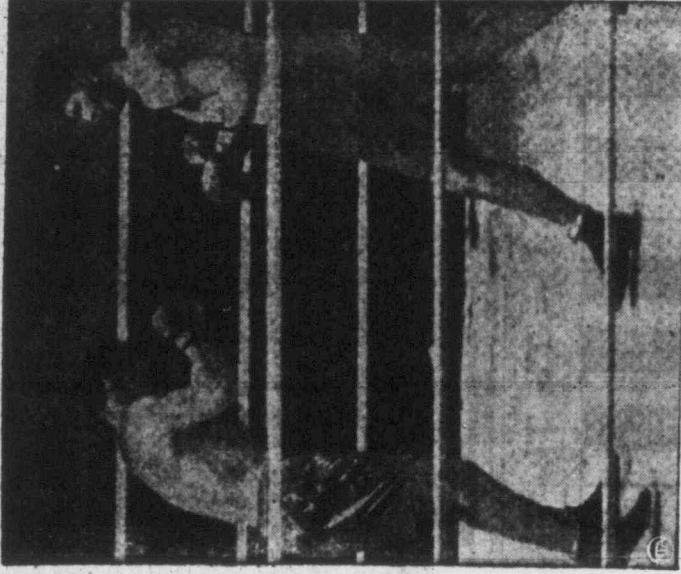

The first round hadn't gone a minute when it happened. Dempsey let fly with his right. It landed high, but it shook up Dempsey. Coming back to the corner, Gene said: "Jimmie, God Almighty didn't break my fist."

But I got the punch in. "I've got him licked."

In the fourth, Tunney made the mistake I had warned him on. He moved into Dempsey's hooking range. A paralyzer caught him on the Adam's apple. Gene was hurt. His right hand and left arm went right hand and left arm on it out of the corner.

Tunney would have knocked out Dempsey if it hadn't been for the rain. On a soaked canvas, it would have been suicide for Gene to gamble. I wanted him to keep boxing. In the eighth, he almost put Dempsey down with a straight left. By this time it was fatigue that was wearing out Jack Dempsey, as well as Gene Tunney's punches.

Why did Jack Dempsey hate me? Why didn't he speak for nearly 30 years?

THE MILLION DOLLAR PUNCH

First lick—Gene Tunney, right, beat Jack Dempsey in 15 in the first minute of their first fight with a right hand punch. He went on to win the title and over a million dollars.

Pueblo, Colo., promoters shot Kearns an offer of $250,000 to fight Carpenter.

But that night the American Legion Post in Pueblo passed a resolution condemning Dempsey for having taken a job in a shipyard while Martin, Gene Tunney and others were in the war.

The resolution branded him a slacker.

This was cruelly and ignorantly laid to me, as Martin's manager. Under pressure, the Pueblo promoters withdrew their offer, asked Martin to fight Carpenter.

"Bronson is defaming Dempsey," shouted Manager Kearns. "He put the Legion up to the resolution. He wouldn't I have tried to switch him to a Martin-Carpenter match?"

I knew Carpenter was a puffed-up middleweight, whom even the novice Martin could have stopped. I telephoned Kearns and said: "I'm trying to steal the Carpenter match."

Dempsey was tried on slacker charges.

Time embittered him. I couldn't remain unmoved either. The coldness endured during both Dempsey-Tunney fights. It became intensified, even though Kearns no longer was with Dempsey.

Years later, when Kearns was handling Mickey Walker, I visited the camp when the Mick was getting ready to fight Jack Sharkey.

"How's the match moving?" Hype Igoe, the New York boxing writer, asked Kearns.

"This is a dead one, no steam," replied Kearns. "How can you ballyhoo anything with that guy from Boston (Johnny Buckley)?"

"If I had a live one like Bronson here, we'd be blasting each other, getting the public keyed up."

Johnson and I broke the greatest publicity story since the boxing heyday. Tunney, the slacker, was the hero.

Turning to me, he said: "But you worried about a prom. I General Pershing. Did your bim Martin have to be brought along so slow? It would have been a two-million touch for sure in 1921."

For the first time I realized I had been made a sucker by Kearns. Not only me but Dempsey as well.

We had become enemies over what Kearns regarded as just a publicity medium. But Kearns' laughing matter, fed was Kearns' laughing matter.

Yet Dempsey and I went on hating each other. Our nearly 30 years of coldness didn't end until 1948. It was at the funeral of Billy McCarney. Billy Taub, the New York clothier, saw me near Dempsey.

"You know Jack, of course," he said. I smiled. Jack smiled back. We shook hands.

But 21 years earlier, as Dempsey grinded himself for a mighty attempt to recapture the title from Tunney, it had been different.

Jack Dempsey was charged up as much as I got even with me, as with Gene Tunney.

Authors Able To Stand On Merit Alone

By A. M. THOMAS

It is axiomatic that talent will assert itself in spite of—sometimes because of—adversity.

Periodically, with the advent of Canadian Book Week, conventions of the Canadian Authors' Society, etc., pleas arise to buy books by Canadian writers and boost along the development of a distinctive Canadian literature.

The proximity of another great English-speaking nation to the south is advanced as a handicap to our own national talent.

This "handicap" is a bogey as false as a Halloween mask. The fact is many a Canadian author, busily creating a Canadian literature, is prospering on the proceeds from his sales in the U.S. There are at least a dozen Canadian authors who have been bought by American publishers and found that Americans were reacting in kind.

If the talent does not exist, purchase of Canadian books will do more develop a Canadian literature than will a government subsidy develop an industry dependant upon non-existent natural resources.

IT HAPPENED HERE

The appalling boredom of con- valence has launched more than one author or artist on a successful career. A. J. Cronin wrote his first book while recovering from a lengthy illness; C. K. Bird, editor of Punch, won his way into England's leading humorous periodical by drawing caricatures of the bodies of his hospital where his body shattered by a mine in World War One, was slowly mending.

Not quite so romantic perhaps, but of more interest to Victorians, is the case of Miss Marian James, director of kindergarten primary education for Greater Victoria.

Miss James, one day, drew to the attention of a representative of J. M. Dent and Sons Ltd., text book publishers, a series of English books for primary school use on the lives and functions of such figures as The Poles, The Postman, The Freeman, etc.

They were English figures, very different from their Canadian counterparts and Miss James volunteered if a similar series could not be produced here. The Dent men agreed and urged her to decide if where she lived she might have been able to do it.

With nothing to do in hospital she started work on the series while still immobilized, and continued on her recovery, in association with Denis W. Brown, supervisor of the department of audio-visual education for Greater Victoria.

So far four of the little books are on the market, The Policeman, The Postman, The Freeman and The Milkman. Several others will be published shortly with Dr. Joyce Boyle of Toronto acting as consultant editor. Ken McAllister of Victoria took most of the photographs with which the series is graphically illustrated.

War's Strangest Story Has Elements Of Greek Farce

"Operation Cleopatra" by L. C.

(Ambassador Books Ltd.)

Of all the weird tales of authentic history that can be said to be literally stranger than fiction, Operation Cleopatra, a calmly factual account of the theft, by photograph, of secret documents from the safe of the British Ambassador at Ankara during World War Two is surely one of the most fantastic.

SIR M. KNATCHBULL-HUGHES, SEN ... saddled with the blame for it.

The book, which will be available in Victoria book stores, perhaps two weeks hence, has the elements of a Greek farce. It runs counter to every pre-conceived notion of a spy story; no sinister desperadoes, no tall beautiful women being guile heroic but susceptible military figures.

In their place as dramatic personae, are a miserable Armenian valet in the British Embassy, an underling in the German Embassy, the shadowy figures of Turkish policemen, a neurotic plain-faced girl clerk and, more impressive but held very much in the background,

Choice Of Love, Or Communism

"Blaise of Nones" by Joanna Beattie. (Ryerson).

An interesting hypothesis is contained in this timely and sincere novel by the winner of Ryerson's All Canada Fiction Award for 1950.

Could a gentle, sensitive young woman with much concern for the problems of the world be catapulted from an unrequited love affair into Communism? That is the proposition Miss Beattie presents. Reed and her friend Jan, who narrates the story, leave their quiet but socially active life in the small town of Vancou, where Reed has worked for "The Bank," to seek a fuller meaning to life and a wider field in which to discover it.

Her story begins when she falls in love with an R.A.F. officer. Her love is unrequited. She meets John Schaeffer and through her friendship is carried into the Communist circle. But Miss Beattie's story is not one wherein all Communists are gross and all democrats mightily fine the people.

She delineates the strong character of Schaeffer by his bitter background of poverty, his bad reason and thought behind his beliefs, even though Jan never could, and Reed in the final analysis, could not accept them.

With a craftsmanship, unusual in a newcomer to the literary field, Miss Beattie plumbs the depths of Reed and John to give them meaning and reality. The ever-present conversational groups may seem contrived at times, but the result is an analysis of the differences of political ideologies, do not pull. —Alien Campbell.

Whodunit Fans Will Solve This

"The Evil In Return" by Marjorie Miller.

Here is murder in the psychological manner with one of the chief characters going quietly ballistic for the usual assortment of human odds and ends and a climax that might keep the amateur whodunit guessing, but not the true blue mystery fan.

Dr. Charlotte Keating unable to help a frightened girl who came to her office, follows up the call to discover the girl has been murdered. She is swept into the web of mystery along with Lewis Ballard, with whom she is in love, his wife and, of course, the police.

The yarn is neatly knit but not even mildly spine-tingling. —Alien Campbell.

Korea War Proved Role Of Helicopter

By DOUGLAS LARSEN

WASHINGTON (NEA)—The "flying windmill" has won itself a new and vital role in modern warfare as the result of its stellar performance in Korea.

Rush orders for more than 500 new helicopters of various types, costing about $100 million, have been placed by the armed forces. Only the limited capacity of the helicopter industry, which had turned out 1,100 of them prior to Korea, is keeping the services from ordering more.

Numerous important missions have been found ideally suited to the up-and-down aircraft. Most dramatic has been the fast evacuation of wounded from the front lines. It kept the death rate among battle casualties at a record low.

The "copter" has proved an invaluable tactical tool in combat for directing artillery fire, directing fighter planes to ground target and general reconnaissance. It furnishes ground troops with new mobility by dropping men on strategic hill-tops, behind enemy lines or at any spot difficult or impossible to reach by ground.

On the seas around Korea the helicopter added to its already established importance in all kinds of rescue work. Newest use is in the location and destruction of the deadly floating mines which threaten U.N. shipping and have already killed many Americans.

The helicopter patrols the water where a mine is reported. A man with a rifle rides along. When the mine is spotted a rifle shot is all that is needed to detonate it.

Most credit must go to the Marines for pushing the use of helicopters for every purpose since World War II. The first combat use was in the Pacific.

They have proved the possibilities of the helicopter in the big flying windmill. However, the big interest of the Marines in the helicopter is for moving assault troops. Marine orders, as a result, are mostly for the big Piasecki "Flying Bananas."

Army's interest is in both the small Bell models for liaison and the big jobs for moving troops and wounded. Army orders call for 80 Bell H-12's which carry three passengers, and are equipped with skids, and 70 H-19 place helicopters.

No helicopters were used in combat during World War II to any significant degree. Until they proved their sturdiness in Korea it was feared they would be very vulnerable to enemy fire, and dangerous to fly. However, only one Navy pilot has been killed in a helicopter accident in Korea. And there is much proof of their ability to "take it."

One helicopter which had been evacuating wounded landed with 30 bullet holes in it and was still able to fly. It was believed that the helicopter was too difficult to maintain to be of any use in combat. The Marines have answered that by doing all maintenance and repair at night.

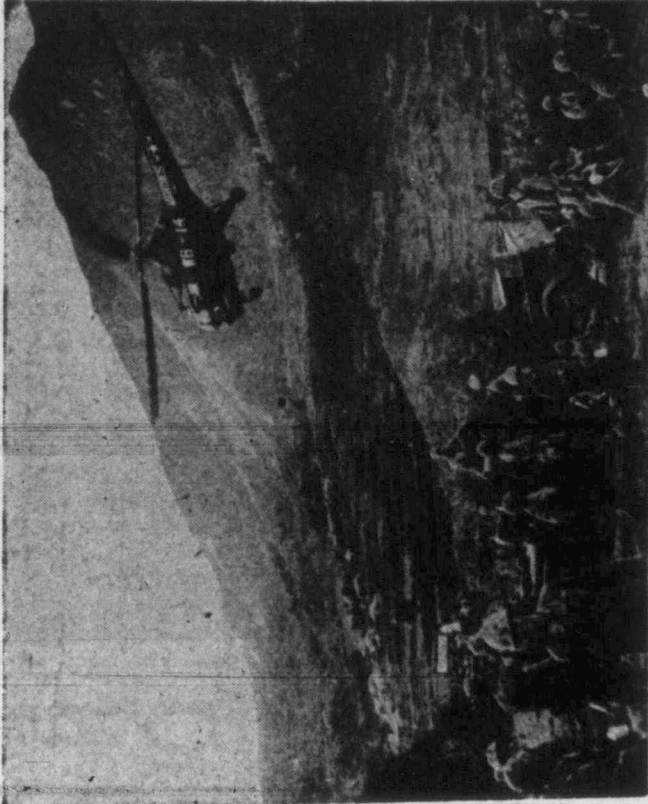

The helicopters now in use in Korea are practically all obsolete even though they have done an outstanding job. The ones on order will be more stable, easier to fly and sturdier. The bigger, faster new ones will be able to fly in the neighborhood of 150 m.p.h. with a range of 400 miles and be able to stay in the air up to six hours.

And there are helicopters with even better performances in the secret stage of development. Also in the works is a tiny helicopter, which will be considered expendable, which would take the place of the parachute in landing airborne troops.

The technical adviser on the picture was Johnny Indrino, who alternates between guiding fight movies and teaching movie stars how to defend themselves in night clubs. Before he retired in 1954, Indrino whipped five world champions—Lou Brouillard, middle and welterweight; Jackie Fields, welterweight; Joe Dundee, middleweight; Tommy Freeman, welterweight; and Indrino trained Montalban four months for the big fight with Sheppard.

Paul Probes Deep Mystery Of Horn-Tooters' Allure

By GALLICO

LAST WEEK, it seems I was sufficiently rude to probe into the allure of the hat check girl as romanticized in the gossip columns of everybody's newspaper, wondering what it was that caused feather-brained rich gent to flutter about them like the proverbial moth.

This week, perhaps I can make amends to the fair sex by shifting the spotlight to the members of jazz and dance bands, toasters, drummers, scrapers, stick wavers, etc., and permitting myself to wonder in public just what it is that makes them so doggone glamorous and attractive to ladies.

If you follow the lives of cafe characters you will know that a considerable percentage of females are vulnerable to the appeal of the rhythm players. They attend their concerts and performances, moon over them, and, eventually, even lure them into wedlock.

There must be something to this appeal, otherwise the moving pictures and screen musicals would not contain so many shots of the boys in the orchestra at work on their instruments. But why do they have again I am in difficulty. I do not understand what it is, this mysterious magnetism that is supposed to emanate from some peanut head blowing into a saxophone, or a Joe in a belted suit waving his arms in front of the band.

NOT REALLY WORKING

The leader of the band, since he is not burdened with scraping, blowing, sawing or banging is usually the sniffling looking of the lot, and it is quite possible that a dame could fall into error of believing that the chap waving his hands about was actually the one who was making those exciting and delectable noises.

He may well be a thorough musician, but the truth is, if he is any kind of orchestra leader, all his work was done before the performance in studying, orchestrating and rehearsing. The symphony conductor actually performs the night of the show. The dance band leader is just going through the motions. And, not only the dame watches him with a kind of hypnotized fascination, but also the guy she is with.

The kind you, I am not criticizing this kind of behavior of strikers, or asking for a new law to be passed. I am just marveling and wondering how it is done.

NOTHING TO LOOK AT

I am prepared to offer you the proposition that this point of view, whereas music is a wonderful thing to hear in all its types, moods and phases and has a message for all of us, the perpetrators of it are not much to look at, particularly while they are in the throes of performance.

The chaps who blow things swell up and get red in the face; they perspire and their eyes bulge and if it is swing, bebop or ultra-jazz music with which they are afflicted, they behave generally as though they were in a grip of a seizure. What they don't trip could take a solemn vow, is handsome, alluring or romantic. What is plenty of the last named is Larry Oliver, sitting on a white horse with a sword in his hand, and not a guy

Constitute Oddest Group Using Vast Facilities—Pay Big Fines

By GEORGIANA WILSON

LAST WEEK was B.C.'s first Library Week. All over the province a lot of new people went in libraries for the first time to see special exhibits, or heard about them over the air in CBC broadcasts.

But in Victoria, operating in cramped temporary quarters, the Victoria Public Library reported very little could be done to observe

City Librarian

Mrs Margaret Clay

Library Week. And for the most of the library's 30,000 borrowers from four years to 90, it was just another busy week for them. They came in once or twice as usual to stock up on their books. Cook books and diesel engineering, etiquette and murder stories, films and children's books—all the varied demands of a middle-sized city library went on just the same.

Questioned, however, about some of their books and borrowers who were the library did come up with some interesting facts—two large groups of people who come in the library, almost never read books. And these groups have amongst them some of the most interesting people the librarians get to know. They are the film borrowers from the library's stock of 130 films, and the musicians who raid the score and choral music sections constantly—and with a big push when there's a new concert coming up.

Victoria's musicians, the library reports, are amongst the best and most enthusiastic of borrowers—also possibly the worst in point of fines and overdue books! School teachers are usually meticulous about their books, university professors take dozens of volumes on special teaching cards, but get them back somehow. Transient borrowers and sailors occasionally present a problem in tracing books gone far afield. But to get back weeks! Choral music from last May 24 celebration concert is still coming in, copy by copy of the "Hallelujah Chorus." And a Victoria violinist left town recently with several precious overdue. They reached the library eventually by way of his family. Fines are another delicate problem in music circles. One local tion—the first negatives the library has ever owned.

Choir leaders are another group who borrow music constantly. Several have been in already checking out Christmas music—and one guitarist Mr. Chubb of St. John's has just discovered a special library edition of Bach's St. Matthew's Passion. Graham Stead, local Christ Church Cathedral organist, borrows each week all the available scores for the college night course in "Ten Great Symphonies." The library also arranges to have extra scores sent over from the University of British Columbia library—a "unfurnished" Symphony. And music teachers from all over the city send in pupils for material for sight-reading.

WOULD BE COMPOSER

Library's most interesting music request to date was an attractive young man who came up and said: "Say could you teach me how to read music? I just got the idea I'd like to compose some music, and I think it might be handy to know the notes." It just so happened the librarian could and did teach him a little music theory—but she hasn't heard yet how the composing went.

Two of the library's most unusual musical characters are a little girl and an old man. The little girl, 11 years old, comes in constantly for "some easy piano music I can read." She cannot take lessons yet, and she is practising on a neighbor's piano, and more or less teaching herself. The old man is anonymous. No one knows who he is, or what his interests are. But he comes in nearly every week and takes down the music scores. Finding no seats nearby, he always sits firmly on the floor, with the library traffic eddying around him, reads his scores for an hour or so, and goes on his way. Another borrower, a middle-aged woman, is studying folk song, and has recently bought a set of music scores for the library. "I thought you should have them," she said.

Pays Cheerfully

Hans Gruber, director of the Victoria Symphony Society Orchestra, who runs up huge fines on borrowed books. He says he himself has paid fines for the new building.

As well as the scores of three-quarters of all Bach's piano works. His ambition, nearly realized, is to complete the set. And he also is arranging for his own use (and others'—perhaps eventually) the organ works of Bach. He has arranged for piano two Bach trios already.

This week, he did a bit more Bach collecting. He borrowed some rare Bach piano scores from the University of Washington, through the Victoria Public Library's interloan service. A local photographer has just finished photographing them, and Mr. Cadwallader will be able to study the copies, which photographed very clearly, long after the originals have been sent back. The negatives of the photo staff prints he is giving to the library to add to its music collection.

Famous Vienna State Opera In New Recording

NEW YORK—The autumn deluge of new recordings began auspiciously with a complete performance of Mozart's "The Abduction from the Seraglio." It has the artistic quality to match the best existing operatic recordings and the mechanical quality to elevate it above most (London; three 12-inch LP's).

It is no casual assembling of singers for a "run-through," but an authentic performance of the storied Vienna State Opera. The recording has all the musical heaviness and spell-weaving histrionics which are the exclusive property of artists disciplined by long periods of working together.

SOUND CONDUCTING

The magnificent orchestral score, which contains some of Mozart's finest achievements in orchestral coloration, was entrusted to the Vienna Philharmonic. Josef Krips, a sound man with Mozart and, in spots, a brilliant one, is the conductor.

Except for Peter Klein, tenor, now a member of the Metropolitan, the singers are unknown in this country.

FOUR-OCTAVE FEMALE

history. And one violinist reads French plays in the original French. Conductor Hans Gruber also reads swiftly whenever he has the time. He reads a great deal outside their field, too. Many of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra members are constant borrowers. Several read murder stories, a first violinist reads interior decorating books, and another reads musical

New English Versions By NYC Opera Group

NEW YORK—The New York City Opera Company is taking another important step toward promoting the presentation of opera in English.

On Oct. 30 the company will give a special benefit performance of Mozart's "Don Giovanni" at the Metropolitan Opera House. The new English versions were prepared by the company's English-language version of "The Marriage of Figaro," conceived by James Pease, one of the City Opera's leading baritone soloists. The new versions will create a fund to finance English and translations of both standard and little-known works. The translation fund will be administered by a committee of musical authorities under the auspices of the American Guild of Musical Artists, of which Pease is a vice-president.

MAY TOUR EUROPE

Eugene Ormandy is considering a project to take the Philadelphia Orchestra on a European tour. The tour would include London, where the orchestra's British tour in 1949 spent several days with Ormandy in Copenhagen during the latter's summer visit to Europe, discussing plans for a continental concert series. Bids for one or more concert series already have been received from several European capitals, including London.

The first performance of a piano quintette by Robert Palmer, young American composer, will be given at a three-day festival celebrating the 25th anniversary of the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation at the Library of Congress in Washington from Oct. 28-30. The Juilliard Quartette and Erich Kor Khan, pianist, will perform the work.

NIGHT AT THE OPERA

Opening night, that is, and it's dear to society, which turns out in ermine, mink and white tie to be photographed and ogled at, like this recent first night at the Met in which Margaret Truman took the lobby spotlight. This year society can't tell which opening night is Opening Night.

2 Met Opening Nights Put Mink Coat Set In A Dither

By RICHARD KLEINER

NEW YORK—The problem before the house is this: When is an opening night not an opening night? Traditionally, the Metropolitan Opera's Opening Night is society's night to howl. It is the occasion when all the dowagers with all their ermine and minks back in the warm glow of photographers' flash bulbs. The Met's Opening Night is, to New York's 400, what New York's Eve is to the other 8,000,000.

VARIED FEELS

But this year the Met's new general manager, Rudolph Bing, had a nasty surprise for the chit-chat set. Their Opening Night won't be the actual opening night. Bing forced them by sticking another opening night—when the opera will actually begin its season—in front of the Opening Night which society will attend.

BING'S SURPRISE

The Met's curtain will actually open for the first time this season on the night of Nov. 6. But that's a week before the season subscribers (which includes society) get to go. And, to make matters more ghastly for society, even the season subscribers are having two Opening Nights—the even-numbered ticket holders go Nov. 13, the odd-numbered ones are scheduled for Nov. 28.

The conversation under the better hair dryers in the best beauty salons is strictly opera these days. The matrons, dowagers and debutantes are up in the air over what to do about this catastrophe. To attend an actual opening night on Nov. 6 you have to purchase a block of three tickets for $100. It was a Bach program and at first we thought our seats were kid gloves. It's going to be both the opening night of Nov. 6 and to the opera. Opening Night later. And on both nights, they will wear their best and mink. In case a camera should, by chance, be pointed their way.

A Met official, asked for the reason behind the horrible tactics said simply: "The purpose, of course, is to raise more money." It looks like it worked.

MUSIC AND DRAMA Unusual Seating Plan Aids City's Symphony Orchestra

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

It is doubtful whether many people in a symphony audience give much thought to how the strings are seated, apart from the first desk, or concert master.

As it happens, though, the place he writes about—its legends, its dialects, its food, its actual "feel." And he has just discovered Ogden Nash's humorous verse. On the more serious side, Gruber often reads to get background for a concert he is conducting. He reads Italian before the last winter's performance of Tchaikovsky's "Traviata da Rimini"—to get the story and atmosphere of the Francesca and Paolo legend.

Next spring, the library reports, Victoria's musicians face a better future as far as the library is concerned. In the new building, opening probably in April, they will have a music and art room all to themselves, with a trained musical librarian, Isabelle Pike, on hand most of library hours. Increased book stock, scores and eventually records are what the library hopes for—though this development will take time and money. Other groups of students will also have special or improved library accommodation.

Old Indian Masks Make Hallowe'en Look Tame

THE YOUNG merry-maker who dresses up in a false face on Hallowe'en is following an Indian custom that was old when Columbus sailed the ocean.

But the Indians took their masks more seriously than does the Hallowe'en reveler. They were an indispensable part of their religious and ceremonial paraphernalia, and some tribes, the Iroquois among them, used them for specific practical purposes such as a lure in hunting the deer and turkey and to invoke the spirits of agriculture and fertility.

Our Coast Indians, the Kwakiutl, Haida, Tsimshian, Nootka and Coast Salish, carved some of the most grotesque and fearsome masks ever made by man. Boldly executed from red or yellow cedar, they were usually brightly painted and often inlaid with abalone shell.

Some of them were worn by Indian doctors as they worked and represented the creatures from which they had obtained their healing power. Others were used by clan members in potlatches and dramatizations of clan traditions.

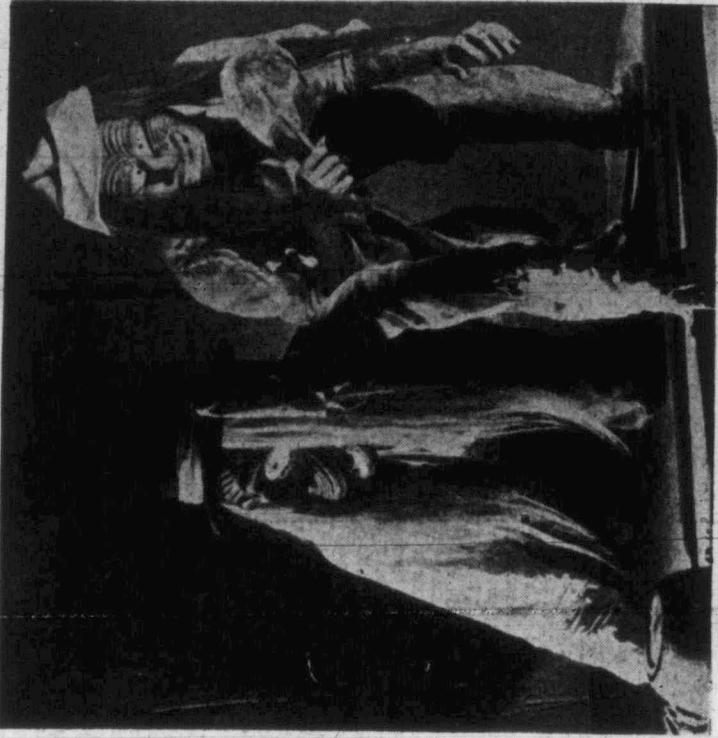

Pictures of Coast Indian masks on this page are from the Provincial Museum in the Parliament Buildings, where an outstanding collection of them can be seen. Information as to their use and history was supplied by Wilson Duff, anthropologist at the museum.

If you see a healthy man, apparently in full possession of his faculties, but walking with a slight list to starboard, chances are he's packing a railwayman's watch in his pocket. They come heavy, those timepieces—and accurate.

A railway watch, Max Kilburger, tells me, is allowed to vary only 30 seconds a week. Any more than that and it has to go to the watchmaker for adjustment. Hamilton, Waltham and Elgin are popular makes for the men who bring the trains in on the minute, with Hamilton putting out a special model for Webb C. Ball, the man who did so much to establish formal time zones for transport companies.

A RAILWAYMAN may own a fine watch, but he can't do anything with it he wants. In the first place, it's only allowed that half-minute variation a week, and no watch of that kind can be set merely by twisting the stem. They're all adjusted after releasing a lever that lies above the face inside the front cover.

For accuracy, a watchmaker likes a watch that's at least an inch across—10½ lines, they call it. Smaller ones often keep good time, but they need more frequent cleaning, not to remove dirt, but to take out the oil that dries and becomes gummy.

If you share my point of view, you'll figure that the small watches the girls wear on their wrists or pinned to their dresses are more bracelets and costume jewelry than timepieces. But if a jeweler offers two good watches to a prospective feminine client, both at approximately the same price, the girl will pick the smaller one every time.

IT'S HARDER to keep wrist watches in good working order than pocket models. People swing their arms too much at too many speeds. To exaggerate it a bit, a man who is fairly normal in his movements, but who occasionally plays a game of badminton or tennis and forgets to take off his watch, is asking for trouble. The fine mechanism isn't made for that kind of action. The vigorous movement influences the balance wheel.

On this continent, the correct time stems from the Arlington Observatory at Washington, D.C., and McGill Observatory, Montreal. They in turn check with Greenwich and the stars. Telegraph and wireless have made the synchronization of time across the Atlantic fairly simple. In earlier days one ship came across with a large number of chronometers aboard. The mean time of the whole lot was taken to confirm the Washington meridian. It was pretty accurate at that. Later tests proved the variance less than one second.

EXPERTS HAVE a good word for the new self-winders. They keep remarkably correct time because they're constantly wound up and the tension is the same day in and day out. The self-winding feature is about as new as the blackstrap molasses fad. It was invented some 250 years ago. In those days the self-winding came from the motion of walking. All accuracy betrays were off if the owner was a tap dancer.

To coin a phrase, time is of the essence in our home, though we're not quite sure what essence it is. The day starts with the unkind b-r-r-r of an alarm set for 6.50. That means it's anywhere from 6.30 to 6.45 P.S.T. The clock explores the future—about seven minutes a day. Then we start to synchronize. The eight-day clock in the living-room says 11.55. Nobody remembers to wind it.

THE SMALL FRY, taking advantage of bleary adult eyes, produce a wrist model that says 9.45. It's a dime store job with the hands painted on. The lady of the house turns up with a little white gold number the size of an oblong dime. Even when I'm bright-eyed I can't see what it says, and even if I could, it wouldn't help. It's never going, either. Elder daughter seems to misplace hers, and father's, is like Henry Wallace, definitely progressive but not too reliable.

So we listen to the radio while we're having toast and coffee. G.G.'s pretty good, but he has an annoying habit of talking too long about a certain European-made car and gets around to saying it's 14 minutes to 8 just as the bus passes toward bound.

We're thinking of getting a sundial. Then we could all stay in bed on rainy mornings.

Officials Greet Veterans At Hockey Game

Two wheelchair patients from Veterans' Hospital who enjoyed Friday's Victoria-New Westminster hockey game were John Roberts, left, and William Davis.

Revenue Minister Sees Big Business Expansion

Revenue Minister J. J. McCann is optimistic over future development in Canada.

In Victoria on an inspection tour of taxation and customs of fices coming under his department, the minister said he looks forward with enthusiasm and confidence to great business expansion.

Dr. McCann and Mrs. McCann, who arrived here Friday afternoon and left for the mainland today, were honored at a reception Friday night at Liberal Headquarters.

The McCanns met nearly 200 members of the Liberal Party at the reception and, after an informal address by the minister, refreshments were served.

Dr. McCann was introduced to the gathering by G. A. A. Heben, president of the Victoria Liberal Association, and he was thanked for his words by Dr. John Ewing.

Among those on the platform were Mrs. Nancy Hodges, Madam Speaker in the B.C. Legislature; Education Minister W. T. Straith, D. J. Proudfoot, M.L.A.; Arthur Ash, M.L.A., and Mrs. Ash; Mrs. R. W. Mayhew, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cox, Mrs. T. C. Smith, president of the Victoria Liberal Women's Forum.

THE MINISTER likened the period Canada is now experiencing to the time a few years ago when the U.S. was going through the "growing pains" of becoming one of the world's greatest industrial nations.

He said Canada's population had risen 23 per cent in 10 years, her trade position was improved and employment was never higher.

Speaking on Canadian defence expenditures, the revenue minister suggested there may be changes in taxation, but he did not see any great hardships in store for the people of the country.

Canada's preparedness program meant less money for some civilian projects and possibly some shortages of civilian goods. "The pinch won't be too tight, though, if we all exercise a little self-restraint, and a little self-denial so prices won't skyrocket," he said.

HON. J. J. McCANN

Believe Truck In Series Of Crashes

City police traffic officers today were investigating the case of a truck driver believed to have been involved in a series of hit-and-run accidents in the city and Esquimalt Friday evening.

Several charges will be laid against the driver, they said. An old model Dodge truck struck a car on Johnson and later knocked down a cyclist at Johnson and Alston.

Another report was received of an old truck striking a car on Government Street near the Causeway.

Still later a 1925 Dodge truck was in collision with a car at Lyall and Gore. Esquimalt police impounded the truck. Investigations are proceeding from there.

VICTORIAN RESCUED

One Of Crewmen On Damaged Fishpacker

A Victoria mariner and two other crewmen of the fishpacker Elwee III were rescued Friday when gale-whipped waves punched a hole in the vessel's hull.

Wilfred A. Pomeroy, 960 Lavender Ave., Marigold district, and two other unidentified men believed to be from Vancouver, were picked up by the fishboat London I which fought through the storm to take the ship in tow.

The packer was stranded in the Gulf of Georgia about 70 miles north of Vancouver. She sent out her SOS as water poured into her engine room.

R.C.A.F.'s marine squadron at Patricia Bay sent a high-speed launch when the Elwee III called that its engine was submerged and an "abandon ship" order would be necessary.

At 4.05 Friday afternoon, the London I reached the stricken packer and towed it into Cockburn Bay, a small cove above Pender Harbor, to wait-out the storm before towing it onto Pender Harbor, on Secheit Peninsula.

SMALL BUT NOT TINIEST

R.N. Engineering Chief On Tour Of West Coast Base

The Royal Navy's chief engineering officer today toured naval installations and major shipyards in Victoria as part of a "courtesy visit" to the west coast.

Vice-Admiral (E) Hon. D. C. Maxwell, C.B., C.B.E., is being conducted on his western visit by Cmdr. H. W. Findlay of the Royal Navy liaison staff at Ottawa.

The admiral emphasized his visit was merely an informal inspection, and that no specific programs were contemplated.

He looked over Yarrow's and V. M. D. shipyards, H.M.C. Dockyard, H.M.C.S. Naden, luncheon with Rear-Admiral W. B. Creery, Flag Officer Pacific coast, at the dockyard, and visited the Canadian Services College at Royal Roads.

Protestant League President Speaks

Communism was described as against the democratic way of life, in a sermon preached by Rev. Edward Morris, president of the Canadian Protestant League, at a public meeting held at the Central Baptist Church Friday.

Protestantism stood for the separation of the church and state, whereas the Roman Catholic was striving for the union of the church and state, the Halifax Anglican minister said.

He said the Roman Catholic Church was making rapid gains in Canada. He claimed it, too, was against the democratic way of life.

Send Europe Aid

Society of Friends (Quakers) in Victoria has sent 25 large cartons of clothing, footwear and bedding to Europe, according to Mrs. I. M. Vallance.

Cartons represent donations from various churches and individuals and the work of members who meet every Thursday to sort, mend and pack the goods for shipment.

Home Plan Would Cost $15,000,000

Welfare Council To Continue Study Of Housing Unit Proposal

Two thousand new housing units, urged as an immediate need in Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Saanich by the housing committee of the Community Welfare Council of Greater Victoria, would cost in the neighborhood of $15,000,000, on the basis of a Vancouver project.

R. L. Bialuski, executive director of the council released a detailed report Friday night of a housing survey calling for 2,000 low-rental housing units, a single housing authority and co-operation of federal, provincial and municipal governments. The committee recommended the three governments build the units.

Premier Byron Johnson this week gave approval to a 200-unit project for Vancouver, which it was estimated would cost $1,500,000.

On that basis the welfare council's recommendation would cost approximately $15,000,000, for the metropolitan Victoria area. The cost to Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Saanich alone would be nearly $1,875,000. The council, however, did not raise the question of cost at all on the grounds that it would be the subject for much further survey and research.

MAY SEEK VOLUNTEERS

"We have not gone into that phase fully enough," said Mr. Bialuski today. "The council has approved the housing committee's report and consideration will be given to formation of a voluntary continuing committee to carry the survey further."

Discussions and negotiations would have to be undertaken with government representatives, Mr. Bialuski said. Recommendations made in the initial survey will be forwarded to municipal councils.

For weeks past, 12 to 15 persons here conducted a survey of blocks in "typical" districts and reported as many as two out of three Victoria families paying more rent than they could afford.

Giving as an example a $1,000 subsidy for housing, Mr. Bialuski said under federal and provincial enabling legislation, FELLOWSHIP in chemistry has been awarded Genille C. Brown-Cave, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Brown-Cave, 3350 Cook Street, by Proctor and Gamble Co. Chief analyst and assayer for Provincial Mines Department, he now is at Massachusetts Institute of Technology engaged in research for doctorate degree.

the federal government would meet $750,000, the provincial $125,000 and the four municipalities would be asked to start the ball rolling with $125,000.

Initial step in any such project must come from the municipalities, who in turn approach the senior governments he said.

LOW-RENT UNITS

The housing committee reported that one project of 1,000 units would consist of low-rent units, mostly smaller suites and cottages for single people, young couples and older people living on reduced income. Rents would range from $10 to $25 a month, depending on ability to pay.

The second project would have a rent range from $26 to $45 a month. Most of these would be designed for families with children, but there would also be accommodation for other family groups. Here too, rents would be based on the tenant's ability to pay.

The $10 rent would apply to old-age pensioners and social assistance recipients. The maximum $45 rent would be paid by families whose income totaled not more than $225 a month.

From the sample blocks taken, the committee felt there were 39,600 family units in Victoria ranging from single individuals to families with four or more children. The sample indicated that 21,000 of these family units were tenants or sub-tenants while 8,700 were home-owners.

The committee worked on the basis that gross rent should not exceed 20 per cent of the tenant's income.

"It is only too evident that large numbers of families are paying rents beyond their means and that many others are buying homes in desperation at prices they cannot economically finance," the committee found.

HOUSING AUTHORITY

Establishment of a housing authority to administer the 2,000 units which would be built by federal, provincial and municipal governments, was recommended. The committee recommended also that no more Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation units be sold and all public housing in Victoria be integrated into housing projects under administration of the housing authority. "It cannot be too strongly emphasized that a public housing project is best administered if it is democratically operated on a decentralized basis, rather than through the local office of a distant authority," the committee stated.

SCOUTS PROMOTED

Before parents at the Elks Own Troop meeting, Kings Road, a "Coming Up" ceremony was carried out for three Cubs crossing the line from Cubs to Scouts. The candidates were Cubs Brian Taylor, Dennis Begg and Graham Howard. The ceremony was carried out by Akela S. E. Dawson and Scoutmaster M. W. Dawson.

Potato Will Make Three Meals

Freak potato, consisting of eight or nine netted gems that decided to grow together, was dug Friday by Richard Forsen, 1801 Ruby Road. It weighed five and three-quarter pounds. A veteran of overseas service with 5th Field Regiment, R.C.A., Mr. Forsen lives on V.L.A. development and won a prize in recent V.L.A. garden contest. He is now employed by Saanich Fire Department.

1,842 Unemployed In City During September

There were 1,842 unemployed registered in Victoria during September, according to figures released by Ottawa. This total consisted of 1,136 men and 706 women.

National Employment Service officials said figures for this month were not available yet. They predicted, however, that the number of unemployed would increase if bad weather prevailed for any length of time as this would slow down the construction industry.

C. A. Mudge, manager, said employment this month was holding out at an excellent level and that there still was a demand for many skilled tradesmen in the lumber and mechanical industries. In the women's selection section requests were being made for experienced wool spotters and pressers.

Mock Graduation Ceremony At Varsity Trek Dance

Marking annual ceremonies in commemoration of the 1922 trek of students from Fairview shacks to the present site of University of British Columbia, Victoria Branch of the Alumni Association held a dance in Club Sirocco yesterday evening. Included in the evening's fun was a mock graduation ceremony, the principals, left to

Tables, covered with gingham clothes and centred with arrangements of varsity pennants, were crowded with graduates, old and new, meeting and reminiscing

Entertains At Tea Hour For Newcomer, Visitor

Mrs. J. P. Gordon, who came to Victoria recently to make her home, was the honor guest, when Mrs. G. R. Easter entertained at her home on Hollywood Crescent. Mrs. Gordon is the wife of Rev. J. P. Gordon, formerly of Saskatoon, and Supervisor of Welfare, under the B.C. Legislature. Mrs. C. L. Taylor, who with her husband is visiting here from Moncton, N.B., was also honored. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor are guests of their son-in-law and daughter, Commissioned Officer and Mrs. L. M. Langstaff. At the tea hour, Mrs. John Tully presided and Mrs. W. N. Nattress, Mrs. Ian Mahood, Mrs. C. D. Stockill and Mrs. M. Langstaff, assisted.

Trio Receive Names

The three small children of Mr. and Mrs. Eric J. Chipper, Florence Lake Road, Langford, were baptized by Rev. Hywel J. Jones last Saturday afternoon in St. Matthew's Church. The little ones received the names Harvey Eric, Gail Ruth and Roland Glenn. Godparents were Mr. and Mrs. R. Cuche, Miss Denise Cuche, for whom Mrs. E. Horseborough stood proxy and Miss Isobel Davidson. Following the ceremony the christening party were entertained at a tea at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Cuche.

Of interest to their Victoria friends will be the news that Mr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Johnson, a former American consul, at one time stationed in Victoria, have arrived in Regina from a term in British Guiana.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mortimer have returned to their home on Beaver Street, after a few days in Vancouver. They were guests of Mrs. Mortimer's sister-in-law, Mrs. M. E. McCannell, at Kitsilano.

Miss Betty Townsend, whose marriage to Mr. William Owen Crow takes place next Friday evening, was honor guest at a shower Thursday. The hostess was Mrs. Donald A. Ross, who entertained at a cup and saucer shower at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Crow, 968 Millner Avenue. Corsage bouquets of pink carnations were presented to the bride-elect and to her mother, Mrs. John Townsend. Refreshments were served in a room decorated with multi-colored chrysanthemums. Other guests were Mesdames H. Baker, R. Meeker, P. J. Crow, D. A. Ross Sr., C. W. Hudson, A. Stinson, M. McDowell, D. M. Frame, and Misses Vivian Challen, Margaret Hallett and Carla Ellis.

Color Photo Exhibit

International color slide exhibit, representing the color section of 10th Victoria International Salon of Photography, will be shown in Esquimalt Community Club Hall, Sturdee Street, Monday at 8.

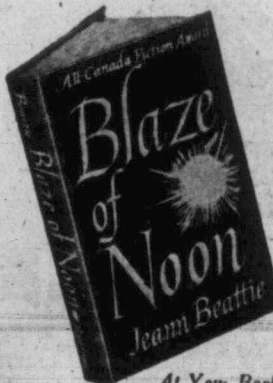

The display includes exhibits of photographers from many parts of the world and will feature 187 slides. These have been selected by Mrs. Bettie Kerkham, Norman Yarrow and Robert Fort.

Through the co-operation of Victoria Camera Club, the proceeds from the exhibit will be used to further the work of the community club.

The colored section is part of the salon exhibition to be shown at Empress Hotel commencing Nov. 5.

An heirloom robe belonging to the baby's paternal grandparents, will be used, when the three-month old son of Mr. and Mrs. David R. Williams, Maple Bay Road, Duncan, is christened, tomorrow afternoon at St. Peter's Church, Quamichan. He will receive the names David Bruce. Officiating at the ceremony will be Rev. Canon T. M. Hughes. Mrs. John Palmer, Courtney, John Francis, West Vancouver and David Farr, Oxford, England, have been chosen to act as the child's godparents. Grandparents of the baby are Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey Williams and Dr. and Mrs. Walter Baby. Following the ceremony, a reception will be held at the home of the baby's parents, Maple Bay Road.

For Margaret Young

Wedding bells and streamers, profusions of bronze chrysanthemums, sweet peas and marigolds were arranged in the reception room when Mrs. J. Davies, Niagara Street, gave a surprise miscellaneous shower for Miss Margaret Young, November bride-to-be.

Twelve candles were lighted as the honor guest entered the room. A three-tier mock wedding cake in white, trimmed with pink roses, and topped by a bride in blue net, held the many gifts. A bride doll composed of 15 kitchen articles, was presented to Miss Young by little Marlene Davies, and an accompanying verse for each article was read by Miss Julia O'Connor. A buffet supper was served.

Other guests were Mesdames F. Siddons, E. Loughlean, K. Dicks, D. Porteous, F. Bishop, A. Ruddick, R. Curtis, H. Skode, J. Mason, L. Hill, G. Davies, M. Schop and Misses LeVina Archibald, Marie Fisher, Jackie Ruddick, Edna Patrick, Marie Jensen and Marlene Davies.

Miss Jane Line, just home from 16-month trip, "ready to start again."

Likes English Countryside

A 16-month whirl of excitement and travel began a year ago last July for Miss Jane Line when she boarded the Empress of Canada at Montreal for the British Isles. Since then her life has been a continual round of interesting events.

Daughter of Mrs. John Line, Superior Street, Miss Line arrived home earlier this week. On her return journey across Canada she made several stops to visit friends and relatives.

While overseas she made London her headquarters and devoted her summers to visiting every point of interest in both England and Scotland.

"I have always heard that the English countryside is different from any other," she tells you, "and this is absolutely true. You come across a tiny village with every type of architecture from hundreds of years back to a modern building tucked in the midst of thatched cottages. Then again the next county follows a different type of architecture. Even the size of the trees and the texture of the soil varies within a few miles. Go farther and you may even find yourself in the midst of the remains of a Roman camp."

Coming from Canada she was struck by the fact that every possible inch of land is put to good use. "You never come across any wild growth," she says. One of Miss Line's favorite trips was to Edinburgh.

"I was fortunate enough to arrive just at the time of the international festival of music and drama," she tells you. "It was something that I had often heard of, but never hoped to see."

Her Future Home In Parksville

When Mrs. J. B. Munro leaves Victoria next Tuesday with her husband, Dr. Munro, recently retired as Deputy Minister of Agriculture, for Parksville, she leaves a host of friends made in the 26 years she has lived in this city. She has been active in church work, being a past president of the Women's Auxiliary, First United Church; in the P.E.O. Sisterhood, where she is at present head of Chapter K, and in Victoria Women's Canadian Club, where she was at one time the treasurer. She and her husband are ardent gardeners, and they expect to continue this hobby at their up-island home. "I'll be interested in church work and women's groups in Parksville, too," Mrs. Munro says, "for I've enjoyed my associations with my Victoria groups so much." Dr. and Mrs. Munro have been widely entertained by friends prior to their departure.

Says Women Cannot Handle Two Careers

MONTREAL (CP)—A woman cannot be a complete success both as a housewife and career-woman. That was the theme of an address by Dr. Charlotte Whitton, C.B.E., at a recent meeting of the Montreal Business and Professional Women's Club.

"No woman's job and no woman's home can be balanced or subdivided, and each receive a woman's best," Dr. Whitton said. "One or the other is going to be short-changed." If in the pursuit of her career a woman entrusts the care of her home to another woman, then it remains a house, not a home. Yet it is the "standard of the day" for a woman to be both mother and bread-winner, she said.

Dr. Whitton also spoke on discrimination against women in the business field. She noted that in spite of women's importance in the consumer market, few women could be found on the directorates of banks or corporations which deal with the Canadian market.

There is definite need for women in the business world "for leadership of women," she said. Mrs. D. A. Girvin speaker, special Women's Missionary Society meeting, Sunday evening in Esquimalt United Church.

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Clarence Wallace, centre, arrived at the ball at 10 o'clock following a dinner at Government House to honor Vice-Admiral the Hon. D. C. Maxwell, C.B., C.B.E., R.N., right. Among

In the receiving line at the head of the stairs leading to the lounge were Capt. and Mrs. J. M. Grant, centre, and Capt. and Mrs. F. G. Hart, left. They are pictured as they welcomed Miss Judith Craven and her escort, Lieut. R. F. Choat, R.C.N., on their arrival at the ball.

Era Of Elegance Enters With Attractive Gowns

An ever-changing picture that had all the scintillating brilliance of a Van Gogh masterpiece was presented yesterday evening in gowns chosen by feminine guests for the annual naval ball at Royal Colwood Golf Club.

Blue and gold of naval dress uniforms and the more sombre black of male evening dress formed a frame for the attractive picture.

Mrs. Clarence Wallace, wife of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, led the feminine parade.

She chose for the occasion a French import of filmy chiffon shaded in panel effect from mist grey through tones of grey and blue to deepest navy. Diamonds, white kid gloves and soft grey chiffon stole completed the ensemble.

Mrs. R. Underhill's pale beige lace model gown was styled with bouffant skirt, the color enhanced in the tones of her Tallis-man roses corsage bouquet at the shoulder line of her fitted bodice.

Mrs. George R. Miles wore a soft grey faille, the fitted bodice of grey lace over shell pink taffeta. An heirloom amethyst brooch enhanced the tones of her gown.

Black crepe touched with gold sequins was choice of Mrs. J. B. Millward with gold jewelry to match; Mrs. H. F. Pullen wore ice blue pebble satin with attractive draped skirt; a very old amethyst necklace and earrings pointed up the gleaming gown of mauve moire taffeta, with slender waistline and bouffant skirt worn by Mrs. B. R. Spencer; Mrs. D. G. King wore a black crepe dinner gown featuring the new cape sleeves.

Miss Ruth MacLean, who attended with Mrs. Wallace, also wore black.

Gold taffeta, with wide flaring skirt and bodice of iridescent sequins, was worn by Mrs. F. G. Hart, and Mrs. J. M. Grant was wearing dark blue lace, styled in smartly classic lines.

A lovely formal gown, eye-catching in its simplicity was the silvery grey crepe model fashioned with draped bodice and straight skirt, worn by Mrs. J. D. Prentice, and accented with cascading stole of flame and green crepe.

FLARING PANELS, LACE

Mrs. Cyril Jones wore a pearl grey crepe gown featuring a floating panel over the slim skirt. Mrs. M. A. W. Bridgman was in mulberry lace over taffeta in the same tone, complemented with a diamond necklace and matching clips at her shoulders.

Mrs. T. Juelsberg chose mauve lace over taffeta, the off-shoulder line enhanced by a sheath of shot taffeta extending from the waistline to form a large bow at the shoulder. Golden drop earrings gave an added elegance.

Sister-in-law of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, Mrs. H. A. Wallace was striking in a scarlet taffeta gown, fashioned with full-tiered skirt and off-shoulder neckline. A brilliant necklace with matching bracelet, completed the attractive ensemble.

A dusky pink rose at the waistline accentuated the crushed black velvet bodice and jet black net skirt over palest blue under skirt worn by Mrs. H. E. Hubbard, who also chose a knotted rope of pearls, earrings to match, dramatic black guantlets and an evening bag sprinkled with sequins.

A corsage bouquet of flame-red carnations was set at the waistline of Mrs. William E. Baker's, period styled white taffeta gown, and a single strand of pearls worn at her throat, further enhanced the off-the-shoulder, full skirted model.

The luxurious gown was worn beneath a midnight blue velvet full-length coat which featured a coachman styled stand-up collar.

Entering the ballroom with her husband, Capt. W. B. Holms, Mrs. Holms wore a white net gown styled with black lace panels to match her short lace jacket. The gown was offset by the exquisite beauty of an heirloom necklace.

Mrs. Peter Hinton wore a black silk net stole over her shoulders, complementing her gown of black silk net over black satin, featuring the new, narrow halter neckline and low-cut back. A dark red rose was tucked at her waistline. To complete her ensemble, she chose a rhinestone and emerald bracelet with matching rhinestone earrings.

Pale pink brocade with pleated skirt slightly en train was worn by Mrs. C. B. Allen. Her only jewelry was a crystal necklace.

Mrs. George Dunlop wore a striking ensemble of black polka dot net over copper satin; French silk taffeta with black background and splashes of colored flowers was choice of Mrs. Harold Wilson; exquisite black lace etched in a lotus leaf design fashioned the gown worn by Mrs. G. B. Williams, a gracious touch added with a matching stole, pearl necklace and earrings.

Mrs. Norman Yarrow's picture dress of grey and white French taffeta was also complemented with a matching stole.

Midnight blue taffeta created a smart effect in the gown worn by Mrs. W. B. Wilson. One large bow at the hip added a distinctive style note. Earrings and necklace of pearls and a diamante pin at the neckline completed her ensemble.

An antique gold loop necklace, matching earrings and gardenia en corsage, added a color note to the black velvet gown of Mrs. J. B. Lynch; Mrs. L. S. Roland was in whispering black taffeta trimmed with black velvet.

Fair-haired Mrs. Guy L. James

Lieut. and Mrs. E. S. Baker enjoy the lilting music of a waltz.

Among younger dancers were Miss Miriam Carter and escort, Lieut. Bill Hughes, R.C.N.

Dr. John M. Tedford, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Gregory, Mrs. H. P. R. Brown, Mrs. Tedford and Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Burns, left to right, were a group of friends attending the ball. Mr. Brown was also in the party. Tables were set in the two main lounges at Royal Colwood Golf Club, around the dance floor and in the downstairs parlor.

were lustrous pearls with her gown of black velvet, cut low at the neckline and with flared skirt rippling from a tiny waistline; moss green satin in off-shoulder mode with slim draped skirt was worn by Mrs. George Gregory; Mrs. George Paulin wore a model gown of black crepe, her only jewelry a crystal necklace; deep rose taffeta enriched with a metallic gold stripe created the wide-skirted gown worn by Mrs. Fred Gardiner.

Mint green taffeta shot with American beauty tones with a large velvet rose in American Beauty pink at her waist was chosen by fair-haired Mrs. S. D. Markham. Miss Jean Ellis wore ribbed silk crepe, deep cream background and small all-over pattern in bronze and gold.

Triple net over taffeta created the attractive bouffant-skirted gown of heavenly pink worn by Mrs. Justin Harbord, the fitted bodice accentuated with a satin cumberbund. She wore a matching stole. Mrs. Harry W. Gladwell attended in a strapless gown of gold-sprinkled white nylon net over taffeta, with gold accessories. Tones of black and apple green were noted in the tight bodiced, strapless gown with bouffant skirt worn by Mrs. Newton Cameron.

Black lace, edged with silver wove a pattern on a black tulle over satin gown worn by Mrs. H. C. Mearns with necklace of brilliants, and matching earrings.

A ball gown of amethyst lace over shimmering grey slipper satin was choice of Mrs. P. J. Sinnott, a large lace bow adding back interest to the strapless bodice and very full skirt.

Pink taffeta with fly-away panels gathered at the hips, complemented with brilliant rhinestone necklace, was worn by Mrs. J. V. Shaw. Adding a bright note to the classic beauty of Mrs. W. Lewis' black taffeta gown was the band of tatan taffeta on the full skirt.

Robert, who with their husbands, gathered at the Fecteau home prior to the ball.

Black velvet adorned the low rounded neckline and tiny cape sleeves of the black taffeta gown worn by Mrs. Hutton. An orchid added an exotic note to her gown, and she wore a necklace of jade.

Mrs. G. H. Kennard chose jewel-toned satin in deep pink, with bustle fullness cascading floor-length, and long sleeved jacket en tone.

Ashes of roses in French jacquard crepe with low squared decollete and draped skirt was worn by Mrs. Gordon Cameron. Together were Mrs. N. A. Hutton, Mrs. Paul Fecteau, Mrs. John Francois and Mrs. Alvin J.

Vivid Colors, Formal Decolletage Vie With Classic Black At Naval Ball

Gowns worn yesterday evening by feminine guests at the ball given by Naval Officers Association of Victoria to commemorate Trafalgar Day, presented an elegance in style and materials that brought back memories of pre-war social affairs.

Mrs. G. H. Kennard chose jewel-toned satin in deep pink, with bustle fullness cascading floor-length, and long sleeved jacket en tone.

Ashes of roses in French jacquard crepe with low squared decollete and draped skirt was worn by Mrs. Gordon Cameron. Together were Mrs. N. A. Hutton, Mrs. Paul Fecteau, Mrs. John Francois and Mrs. Alvin J.

in the drop-neckline, and full flared skirt. Clasp on the bodice was an old family brooch of lapis lazuli.

Crystal necklace and earrings were chosen by Mrs. J. M. Tedford with her stunning gown of dark green shot taffeta, which shone black in the dazzling lights. A taffeta bow topped her left shoulder and a second bow of taffeta adorned the very full skirt.

Brilliant Oriental colorings on white created the brief Chinese jacket worn by Miss Jane Leigh, over her teal brown velvet gown held with a slender line of pearls over the shoulders. Miss Leigh was escorted by her brother, Cmdr. F. B. Leigh.

ANKLE-LENGTH SKIRTS, BRILLIANTS

Mrs. H. S. McDougall, wife of Lieut. McDougall, attended the ball in a black gown with gold faille peeking from under the ankle length full skirt. Long black gloves, rhinestone bracelet, matching necklace and earrings, complemented her gown. Her corsage bouquet was a blend of yellow roses. An off-the-shoulder peach-pink satin gown with swirling skirt and rhinestone accessories was worn by Mrs. Gordon Verley. Blending tones of blue net were gathered into a drape at the shoulder line on the dress worn by Mrs. W. C. Mearns. Pearls at the neck added an elegant note.

Mrs. Harold Henderson wore an off-shoulder shell pink brocade, the classic lines highlighted by a crystal choker. Mrs. Angus Kenning's strapless gown of pink net had an attractive top of intermingled silver and gold lame. At her neck she wore a diamante necklace with matching earrings. Her outfit was completed by a gardenia corsage bouquet. A smartly-cut black ensemble with sequin and beaded peplum was worn by Mrs. Barclay. A diamond necklace and earrings added to her attractive appearance. In the same party with Mrs. Barclay was Mrs. Alec Gunning. Her stunning white gown was accented with a hand crocheted lace peplum. The bou-fant skirt had inserts of applique crocheted lace and a ruching of lace at the neck completed the attractive effect. Mrs. George H. Wheaton appeared in a gorgeous strapless gown of gold and white brocade. Tiny buttons to the waist complemented the tight bodice. The skirt was sheathed in front in contrast to the draped back which fell into a slight train. Gold kid slippers picked up the tones of the brocade.

Mrs. Jack Mercer wore an elegant black ankle length gown. The striking simplicity of her ensemble was accented by a ruching of lace at the top of the bodice. An aquamarine pendant, brilliant earrings, and bracelet added the color note.

A stunning foil for her fair coloring was the midnight blue gown selected by Mrs. R. D. Travis. Brilliant clips accentuated the squared neckline. Mrs. Travis also wore necklace and earrings of pearls.

Mrs. John Wade was charming in a portrait gown of white shadow lace, the tiny waistline encircled with slim red velvet sash.

GARDENIAS WITH GARNETS, PEARLS

A bouquet of snowy gardenias was clasped at the slender waistline of the Grecian draped gown in heavy black crepe chosen by Mrs. T. Burns, a perfect contrast with her fair skin and dark hair. Her necklace and earrings were of onyx and pearls.

Mrs. N. O. Williams chose a formal gown of white brocade satin. Her sister, Mrs. M. H. E. Page was lovely in white faille taffeta, with full skirt and tiny cap sleeves finishing the slim bodice. She wore pearls.

Dark-haired Mrs. Conway Parrott was attractive in ruby-hued shot taffeta, the bodice deftly draped over one shoulder, and the voluminous skirt swirling floor-length. She wore garnet drop earrings.

Vivid cerise and turquoise panels added interest to the off-shoulder, full-skirted gown in gleaming black taffeta worn by Mrs. T. A. Brown. She also wore a matched set of onyx pendant, bracelet and earrings.

Flashing silver and gold sequins startled the classic black crepe gown, with sleeveless tunic over a very slim skirt worn by Mrs. J. W. Barclay. She wore pearls at her throat.

Mrs. H. P. R. Brown also chose black, her striking taffeta gown fashioned with vivid rainbow-striped bustle, the bright colorings repeated on the bodice.

Black satin, with shoulder straps in braided self fabric, and skirt fullness drawn to the front was chosen by Mrs. Harry Milton Dutton. A crystal necklace was her only jewelry. With her was her sister, Miss Gae Brock. She chose a full-skirted gown in dazzling white

Rumpus Room Aprons In Humorous Designs

By PENNY SAVER

Heigh, ho, come to the rumpus room! There'll you'll find the master of the house (take it easy, mom, you have to let him wear the crown once in a while), sporting the latest in aprons! That'll be the day, you snort! Just wait, then, until you get a glimpse at what the well-dressed host is wearing this year.

Looking every bit like the "habit" worn by men behind the bars . . . and I don't mean the horizontal kind . . . the aprons are styled with gold-buttoned red "weskits." In great bold letters printed across the "skirt" of the apron, you'll find such humorous lines as, "Please don't stand up while the room's in motion," or "I'm always behind the eight ball," among others. The "among others," proved pretty interesting too!

Price on that bit of tomfoolery sums up to $3.95. A similar, generous-sized bib type apron, which also boasts boisterous sayings, is reminiscent of the gay nineties. A rosy-cheeked, mustachiod, bartender is depicted "fillin' 'er up," at his clumsy old-fashioned wooden bar. Yours for $2.50.

Then, there's a crying towel . . . made of serviceable huck toweling, by the by . . . to surprise guests a little further.

With the words "Don't cry in your beer, use this!" the towel will take its place on the rack to save wear and tear on your own good linens. All three of the foregoing playroom accessories can be washed . . . providing you use a mild soap. While we're in the mood for dressing up I might mention a little clothesline set . . . w/ clothespins and all . . . that must have been specially designed for the apartment dweller. The set consists of a plastic clothesline, 20 feet long, six red and six blue plastic clothespins. The dainty, slender line and its colored pegs will do proud to any kitchenette where clothes have to be dried in the great indoors. Affected by neither hot or cold weather, the plastic line is easily washed and won't discolor. For a shower gift, who could ask for more, for the price of $1.50?

LEGAL SERVICE

SUBJECT:

Good Insurance

A lawyer's guidance and service in any new venture is insurance against many risks.

In buying real estate or chattels, for instance, a person can be assured of a good title.

In lending money—that the lender gets the security agreed on or that the borrower is protected in the peculiar terms of his loan.

In making a Will—that it is legal and carries out the maker's intentions.

In building a house—that the contract with the builder is correct.

There are many pitfalls in these and such like matters, and the risks are just as great as fire and tempest and it pays to be safe.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDER

The parent hears so often that ominous phrase, "the child's sense of security," and she may feel a real dismay that she is providing it for him. Does this mean, she asks herself, that he must have a fine home, wealthy parents, a satisfaction of all his desires?

Not at all. The foundation stone of a sense of security is the child's recognition that he is loved and cherished. He has his first taste of this knowledge if the mother nurses him. This provides the feel of her body warmth, the joy of being cuddled and loved even as he is having his uncomfortable, hunger sensation satisfied. This fills the infant cup of security to overflowing.

As he grows he has other needs which must be fulfilled. He must have companions and these must be ones who will accept him for what he is, just as does his family. This sense of belonging and of worthiness can come only from the individuals near and dear to him and those outside the family circle showing him that they love him and like him.

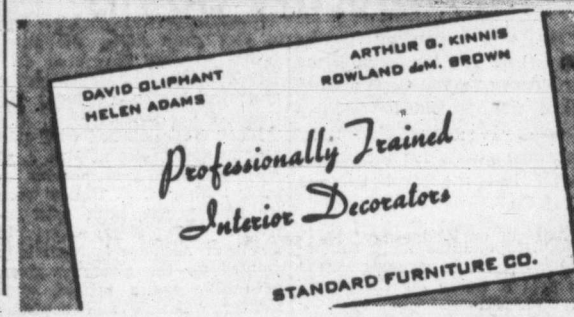

Nothing so tends to shake the child's feeling of security in the home as to have the parents punish and blame him constantly for behavior which is natural. All children cry, yell, slap, kick, bite, refuse to eat, wet their panties, etc.

A child's sense of security is confirmed when he knows that he is loved, wanted and needed in the family to which he belongs and the circle of friends with which he associates. That is all there is to it.

Our leaflet No. 86, "How To Be a Good Parent," may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Fishermen Will Benefit From Dredging In Sooke Harbor

Government dredge is now deepening Sooke's sheltered harbor at north end of government wharf. Here a mooring float and breakwater will accommodate increase in number of small craft using harbor. Fishermen want room to rearrange nets and work on their boats. They now shelter between wharf and J. H. Todd plant.

Farm Society To Fight For Duncan Acres

DUNCAN—Cowichan Agricultural Society, recently notified that its lease on Indian Reserve land at Duncan is null and void, will seek legal advice toward retaining its hold on the five acres in question.

"We have no intention of giving up the land without a fight," Hamish Mutter, president of the society, commented regarding the recent Exchequer Court decision.

At an executive meeting of the society, held Thursday night, it was decided to place the matter in the hands of a lawyer. As soon as more complete information is available, it will be presented to all members at a special meeting.

Rank Put Aside At Army Smoker

Rank was brushed aside this week in the Victoria-Esquamit Army Garrison, permanent force, when 240 officers, N.C.O.'s and men mingled at Work Point Barracks for an enjoyable concert and smoker.

The outcome was the decision to have such get-togethers more often.

The entertainment qualities of the Hometowners kept the gathering in good humor throughout the evening. Maj. J. F. Dobson, acting garrison commander, spoke briefly.

During the evening, Gnr. K. R. Legear was presented with a gift from the Half-Way Taxi for being rated the most valuable player on the army softball team.

SENTENCE ONLY 10 MINUTES

VANCOUVER (CP)—A sentence unique in court records was imposed by Chief Justice W. B. Farris.

He sentenced Jacqueline Rogers, 22, mother of a seven-week-old baby, to 10 minutes in jail Friday for stealing two men's suits.

The woman had already spent two weeks in jail.

Electric Co. Head Loses Jail Appeal

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—County Judge Ian MacRae Friday dismissed an appeal by 65-year-old A. T. Taylor, president of Taylor Electric Manufacturing Co., against a six-month jail sentence and fine totaling $138,000 received on 22 charges of tax evasion.

1 Killed, 5 Injured

SEATTLE (AP)—A young mother was killed and five other persons were injured in a two automobile head-on collision in the south end Friday night.

Coroner John P. Brill Jr. identified the victim as Mrs. Marion Ruth Hayett, 28.

VANCOUVER (BUP)—Some

1,300 truck drivers in Vancouver have been awarded a 4-cents-an-hour across the board increase by a government arbitration board. The new scale is retroactive to Sept. 16.

Counsel Sees Gaps In Evidence Of Mary McIntyre

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Counsel for Douglas Carapata, on trial for assault with intent to murder his niece, Mary McIntyre, 25, contended there were two discrepancies in her story.

Carapata, a salesman, is charged with beating Miss McIntyre with a hammer in her apartment last June. The young woman is a native of Vancouver, B.C.

Defense attorney Emmet Hagerty said at Friday's session that Miss McIntyre had told the grand jury that Carapata visited her alone at 2 a.m. the night of the beating. Thursday, she testified that Carapata had come in the company of circus announcer Jack Klein.

Hagerty also declared she told a doctor when she was taken to St. Francis Hospital that she awoke in her bed with a stranger standing over her, but that on Thursday she said she remembered her uncle striking the first blow.

"I think it's pretty evident we are dealing here with a girl having a little difficulty orienting herself," Hagerty said.

This remark drew heated objections from Assistant District Attorney Walter Glubbini and an admonishment from Judge Twain Michelson.

Judge Michelson announced at the opening of the session Friday

SHOE MONEY WINS CASE

DETROIT (AP)—A defendant in court sometimes has an ace up his sleeve, but Herman Van Hoose, 50, had money in his shoe.

Hailed before Judge Gerald W. Groat on a vagrancy charge, Van Hoose said indignantly that he was no vagrant—he had $17.

Van Hoose, who has only one leg, took off his shoe and produced the money.

"You leave the prosecution without a leg to stand on," said Judge Groat. "Case dismissed."

Children Die In Fire While Parents Away

PICTURE BUTTE, Alta. (CP)—Two small children burned to death in their bed-shack home late Friday while their parents worked five miles away in a sugar beet field.

Dead are Claud Paunovic, 5, and his two-year-old sister, Christina. They were the only children of Mr. and Mrs. Dobri-voy Paunovic, who came to Canada five months ago from Yugoslavia.

Three jurors had been threatened on the telephone. He warned that anyone caught trying to influence the jury would be subject to vigorous and uncompromising prosecution.

U.N. Assembly, Half-Way Mark Of Its 1950 Session

Views Its Successes As It Tackles New Problems; Some Will Go Over For Year

LAKE SUCCESS (AP)—The United Nations General Assembly today reached the half-way point in its 1950 session. It has taken decisions on its two main tasks—unification and reconstruction of Korea and establishment of a veto-proof system to combat aggression.

In the view of most of the 60 delegations those two actions place a stamp of success on the last six weeks of debate. There is a general feeling—not shared by the Russian bloc—that the main obligations of this session largely have been discharged.

The Assembly still faces a docket heavily loaded with issues. Many high Assembly officials feel some of these questions will have to be put off until next fall. They are opposed to holding a session in the spring to work through the entire agenda.

Final Assembly ratification has been given to the Korean resolution. While the Korean fighting now is drawing to a close, speed was essential at the time the Assembly acted since the resolution gave tacit approval for Gen. MacArthur's forces to cross the 38th parallel and occupy North Korea.

The anti-aggression plan now awaits final approval at an Assembly plenary session. That approval is a foregone conclusion. The U.S.-sponsored resolution received overwhelming support in the political committee, where all members are represented, despite the efforts of the Soviet Foreign Minister, Andrei Y. Vishinsky, to kill the plan by emasculating amendments.

Various Russian efforts to oust the Chinese Nationalists from the Assembly and give their seats to the Chinese Communists have been beaten down during the last six weeks. The major fight of Chinese representation is still to come, however.

Atomic control is not on the docket this time, but at least one day will be set aside for discussion of the atom by an Assembly

Yanks 'Shot' From Ambush Inside War-Torn Building

An ingenious navy photographer caught this sniper's-eye view of two U.S. soldiers trudging through the wreckage of Korean town of Pohang. Lucky for them it was a friendly cameraman, instead of a Communist sniper who "shot" them through the circular window.—(NEA)

Tip-Off Probed By Police In $2,000 Vancouver Robbery

Woman Used As Shield In Daring Stick-up

VANCOUVER (CP)—Four masked, armed men today held up a downtown branch of the Bank of Montreal here and made a clean getaway with $2,000.

The gunmen seized Catherine Collins, pretty librarian, as they entered the bank and used her as a shield as teller Bruce Auchinval was ordered to "fork over the dough."

The bandits ordered customers to lie on the floor and one of them held the screaming woman in front of him as they scooped money from deposit wicket.

Police said they were investigating a mysterious tip-off from a woman who telephoned them seconds before the bank was held up.

The bank was jammed with customers just before the 11 a.m. Saturday closing hour when three men leaped from a black automobile. The fourth man remained at the wheel.

Police immediately started to comb the area around Denman and Barclay Streets, where the bank is situated.

Police said the car had been stolen at nearby Maillardville.

Rockingham Cancels Fort Lewis Visit

VANCOUVER (BUP)—Brig. J. M. Rockingham, commander of the Canadian Army Special Brigade, will not go to Fort Lewis, Wash., as scheduled, an authoritative military source said here.

This could mean the brigade was not going to Korea, the source said.

Defence Minister Brooke Claxton, representing Canada at the Washington talks of North Atlantic Pact ministers, is expected to make an announcement shortly on the brigade's destination.

NO PLAN TO QUIT CANADA, BOYER SAYS

Atom Scientist Visitor In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Raymond Boyer, wealthy Montreal chemist who once served a penitentiary term for wartime violation of Canada's Official Secrets Act, is here today and says he has no intention of leaving Canada.

Friday night, External Affairs Minister Person said in New York that the R.C.M.P. had lifted Dr. Boyer's passport two days ago "as a result of information which had reached the government and which led them to believe that Dr. Boyer intended to leave the country."

The question of Dr. Boyer's whereabouts was brought up by Toronto newspaper stories Friday which said he had disappeared and might be heading for Russia.

Dr. Boyer Friday night called the R.C.M.P. and announced his presence in Toronto. He also issued a statement to the Toronto Globe and Mail which said:

"I have no intention of leaving the country. I have not applied for any visas. Dr. Boyer said he had been visiting friends here and would return to Montreal Monday."

Dr. Boyer's father, Major Guy Boyer, told the Canadian Press his son had talked of a trip to Europe to visit friends and relatives in England and France.

Reached at his farm home at Terrebonne, Que., a few miles north of Montreal, Maj. Boyer said:

Sioux Helps Big Carrier

TOKYO (CP)—The Canadian destroyer Sioux accompanied the British carrier Thesus in a tour of air-support duty along the Korean coast during the last two weeks, it was disclosed today.

The action was made known when Rear Admiral William Andrews, commander of the Commonwealth fleet in Korean waters, gave congratulations for the work of the 14,000-ton British carrier.

The Sioux is commanded by Cmdr. Paul Taylor of Victoria, B.C. The two other Canadian ships in Korean waters are the destroyers Athabaskan and Cayuga.

Aircraft based on the Thesus flew 401 sorties in 13 days. The only casualty was a Sea Fury pilot shot down by anti-aircraft fire and later rescued by an American helicopter.

During its tour of duty, the Thesus steamed 4,476 miles. The Australian destroyer Bataan and the British destroyer Constance also accompanied the carrier.

24-Hour Strike

MELBOURNE (Reuter)—Train services in all Australian states except West Australia will be paralyzed for 24 hours from midnight tomorrow.

Vishinsky Has A-Bomb Doubts

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y. (UP)—Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky expressed doubt today the United States would stop producing atomic bombs even if the United Nations adopted the American-supported plan for atomic control.

In a major policy speech, ranging over the whole field of foreign affairs, the Soviet foreign minister once again rejected the atomic control plan accepted by a majority of the U.N. Assembly.

Rudderless Craft Pounded By Seas

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—A rudderless vessel was buffeted at sea today and up to 70 persons were reached by searching snow-plows in a mountain pass as diminishing winds continued to pound the Pacific coast.

The known death toll from four days of storm was four. At least three more deaths were attributed indirectly to the gales.

TIBET ASKS INDIA HELP TO REPULSE REDS

Chinese Driving In From Passes

NEW DELHI, India (CP)—The Tibetan government has asked India for help to meet the threat from Chinese Communist forces, usually reliable sources said here tonight.

Earlier, government sources in close touch with Tibetan capital had said Chinese Communist troops entered the eastern mountain district of Tibet three days ago.

The strength of the Communist forces and their deployment were unknown, informants added.

The Tibetan government, though aware of the invasion, was unable to pinpoint the border crossings, which were reported to have been made in an almost inaccessible mountain vastness of eastern Tibet.

Red China Loses Ground In U.N.

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y. (UP)—Communist China's reported invasion of Tibet threatened today to thwart the Peking government's bid for United Nations membership.

Pending confirmation of reports that Chinese Red leader Mao Tse-tung had sent his forces driving into that Shangri-la country—the influential Indian newspaper, Statesman, said they were 150 miles inside Tibet—most delegations to the U.N. refused to express official positions.

But authoritative sources said the Indian delegation, a prime mover in the campaign to switch Nationalist China's U.N. seat to the Communists, had bluntly warned Peking that it would cease to support its bid for membership in the world organization if its forces actually invaded Tibet.

MARSHALL SAYS WEST SHOULD BE 'REALISTIC'

Makes Appeal To Defence Heads

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defence Secretary George C. Marshall appealed today to the defence ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty organization to be "realistic in the appreciation of the present critical situation" as they shape the combined force for defence against Communism.

(Canada's Defence Minister Brooke Claxton came out Friday for the appointment of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as Supreme Commander of allied forces in Europe.)

"We must face facts without prejudice," the U.S. defence chief said in an address at the opening of the defence committee session.

He offered some sober words of warning about what can happen if the North Atlantic countries let down in their efforts to build strong defences against Communism.

ONLY STARTED

"We must not sink into complacency or over-confidence, for the struggle may only have begun," he said. And then, at another point in his speech:

"What has been done so far, good as it may be, is far from enough."

The potential collective force of the United Nations was not enough to deter the aggressors in Korea. The actual collective forces of the North Atlantic states might not be enough to deter aggression in the north Atlantic area and definitely were not enough to resist attack without serious and critical initial losses.

Argonauts Whip Ottawa

TORONTO (BUP)—The Toronto Argonauts moved into a Big Four Football League playoff berth today by slamming the Ottawa Roughriders 30 to 7 before 20,000 fans in Varsity Stadium.
